

The BiCafe: Where the Invisible become VISIBLE.

If you are Bi and are single or a couple, you already know how extremely difficult it is to meet like-minded. I find it astounding that there are so many social clubs for gays, lesbians, heterosexuals but not ONE solitary club exclusively for bisexuals. The BiCafe is an OnLine Interactive BiCommunity, exclusively for Bisexual, BiCurious, and BiLoving Adults.

Personal Data Sheets incorporate Clothed Photos. If you elect to post clothed photos, you will have the ability to see other members photos. If not, you will see their Personal Data Sheets only. Our new OnLine Shopping Store named "BiMart" features BiCafe Logo items and the New BiPride Flag! TM If you have a Commercial Bi Web Site, join The BiCafe Commercial Web Site Ring. Plenty of areas for members to promote their own web sites and businesses.

I have incorporated 5 distinct BiChat channels to keep your discussions focused, 9 exciting BiForums & Editorial menu with images awaiting YOUR submission, Private Email, screened and paying members, BiFriendly service and location listings, Bi Erotic stills, and a General Bisexual Information menu.

Introduction

In the mid 1980s I was at a conference on bisexuality sponsored by what is now known as the Bisexual Resource Center and someone said, "Wouldn't it be great if someone made a list of all of the bi groups out there? That way we could all keep in touch with each other." I remember thinking, "What a good idea! SOMEBODY should do that." Well, that somebody turned out to be me. I pulled together the first edition of the International Directory of Bisexual Groups later that year. It was six pages long and listed about 40 groups in a handful of countries.

Things change. Movements grow. Listing over 300 bi groups and 1750 bi-inclusive groups in 56 countries, as well as hundreds of electronic resources, the Bisexual Resource Guide 2000 is evidence that the bi movement has indeed come a long way. The growth in the number of bi groups is evidence of a burgeoning movement, but perhaps even more powerful a statement is the number of groups which formerly ignored (or even denied access to) bisexual people which now include us. This expansion of "community" is an international trend, and it will help to make it easier for bisexual people to identify as such, and easier for all of us – lesbian, gay, bisexual, heterosexual, transgendered, queer, and questioning – to find comfort with ourselves and a sense of community with others, even if and when our identities change over our lifetimes.

An Asian woman recently wrote to me, wondering why we would be interested in including Asian resources in a Guide produced in the United States. It is my belief that we are all empowered by the knowledge that there is widespread organizing by bisexuals and other sexual minorities in so many countries throughout the world. We can gain nourishment and strength by looking across oceans, and sometimes even by looking across town in our own communities. This book is evidence that we are not alone, and we are in good company.

This guide includes several other important sections: an extensive bibliographic section, an annotated list of recommended films, advertising, information on safer sex, photos, great quotes, cartoons by Alison Bechdel and Roberta Gregory, an electronic resources section, and of course listings of 2100+ resources in 56 countries.

The Bisexual Resource Guide 2000 is truly a community undertaking. More than 150 people contributed their time and talents to make it happen. A list of some of these people follows. This project couldn't have happened without you! And we need even more people to help with the next Guide. Besides giving of your money (hint, hint!), you can also help by writing to me and giving me feedback. I especially need the input of folks outside the U.S. What other information would you like to see in the next edition of this guide? What books and films have you read that you think should appear on the lists (but don't yet)? Are there groups that you know about that I don't? Are there listings that are incorrect? I won't know unless you tell me. You can write to me c/o BRC, or you can write to me directly at: PO Box 391611, Cambridge MA 02139 (USA) or send me e-mail at:

To my domestic partners, Luca (now departed, sadly) and Emma, for serving as paperweights.

SPECIAL THANKS TO THE ESPECIALLY WONDERFUL:

This project would not have been possible without the support and brilliance of Kathleen (the extremely great) Hepburn. She designed the data base in which over 2000 listings reside. She has walked me through technical questions, made me laugh when I needed to. And, of course, she made this Guide look the way it does;

Linda Dyndiuk who tirelessly and relentlessly dug up volunteers, scheduled them week after week, and chased down overdue listings and "missing" editors, and worked every single Monday evening for at least a year on this project!;

David Rothscheck and Arthur Cohen for their endless patience and boundless energy as they stepped in at the eleventh hour and helped with some of the metaorganizing, taking on everything from securing advertising, to soliciting volunteers, and keeping me calm.

And of course, I'll take a bit of credit too as the mother and editor of this book, and its previous 13 incarnations as the The Bisexual Resource Guide and as The International Directory of Bisexual Groups.

This Guide is dedicated to my mother, Sonny Ochs and to my partner in crime and life, Peg Preble, neither bisexual, and both two of my strongest supporters.

What is Bisexuality?

bi Robyn Ochs

Some people are attracted to men. Some people are attracted to women. And some people are attracted to men and to women. And some of us go through periods in our lives when we aren't particularly attracted to anyone.

Simple.

Sexologist Alfred Kinsey and his colleagues tried to chart this diversity by developing what ended up being called "The Kinsey Scale," a seven point scale in which people who were exclusively heterosexual in their attractions and behaviors were assigned a zero, people who were exclusively homosexual a six, with lots of combinations of heterosexuality and homosexuality in the one to five range. One of the most surprising findings of the Kinsey Report was that almost half of his male respondents, and about one-fourth of his female respondents reported adult sexual experience with both men and women. And this was in the late 1940s! Kinsey addressed the fluidity of sexuality in the following statement:

Males do not represent two discrete populations, heterosexual and homosexual. The world is not divided into sheep and goats. Not all things are black, nor all things white. It is a fundamental of taxonomy that nature rarely deals with discrete categories. Only the human mind invents categories and tries to force facts into separated pigeon-holes. The living world is a continuum in each and every one of its aspects. The sooner we learn this concerning human sexual behavior the sooner we shall reach a sound understanding of the realities of sex.

Similarly, anthropologist Margaret Mead stated in a 1975 article in Redbook,

Even a superficial look at other societies and some groups in our own society should be enough to convince us that a very large number of human beings – probably a majority – are bisexual in their potential capacity for love. Whether they will become exclusively heterosexual or exclusively homosexual for all their lives and in all circumstances or whether they will be able to enter into sexual and love relationships with members of both sexes is, in fact, a consequence of the way they have been brought up, of the particular beliefs and prejudices of the society they live in and, to some extent, of their own life history.

Given statements like this, it is surprising that Western culture has held on to its dichotomous concept of sexual orientation, which posits that everyone is really either gay or straight. In this mode of thinking, bisexuality exists only as an oddity, a transitional phase, a blip in the natural order of things.

But those who attempt to dichotomize sexuality are closing their eyes to the very real experiences of some very real people. Anthropologist Esther Newton wrote that "desire, we begin to think, is less like a heart, throbbing the same everywhere, and more like music, and every culture has its own—not only songs, but tonality, instruments and occasions." Not only does every culture and every subculture have its own understanding of sexuality and its meaning, but every individual is different, with our own unique sexuality. We each have the right to use the labels we choose, and to live as we choose, providing that all parties involved are fully consenting adults

My advice to you is this:

Be good to yourself.

Be good to your loved ones.

Be honest.

Be thoughtful.

Play safe.

Communicate.

Get the support and information you need.

And celebrate the gift of your sexuality!

And that's the purpose of this book.

How to Start a Bisexual Support Group

bi Robyn Ochs

Bisexual support groups are springing up all over the world. Is there one in your town? If not, you may want to start one. Here are some pointers to help you create the safe space essential for creating a positive bisexual identity.

What is a Support Group?

It's up to you to decide what type of group you want. It can be a social group, a facilitated or unfacilitated discussion group, it can be closed or open to newcomers. Each type of group will require different skills to run.

Rule Number One: There Are No Rules.

There is no simple formula for the successful creation of a bisexual support group. Even within a given country, every community has its own character. Organizing in Minneapolis is not the same as organizing in a small town in New Hampshire. And a small town in Manitoba may be different from a small town in Quebec. Therefore, what follows are guidelines and suggestions, not hard and fast rules. You will need to adapt this information to your own community's resources and needs, and to your own personal desires.

A Group will be More Successful it its Members Feel a Sense of Ownership.

If you are beginning a group, do everything possible to make sure that the group, and not one person, shares responsibility and decision making. Therefore, while it is important to go into your first meeting with some ideas about what you would like a group to be, be open to other people's ideas. Failure to do so will result in a situation where all members will not get what they need from the group, and you will get stuck doing all of the work, because other people will not feel invested in the group. And if you burn out or lose interest, the group may cease to exist.

Logistics

The first step in forming a new group is to organize a meeting. This process of organization has several components: finding a space, letting people know that the meeting is going to happen, and deciding upon the actual agenda for the meeting.

Finding a space: In many communities it is possible to obtain meeting space at little or no charge. Public libraries, schools, city or town halls, someone's home, women's or progressive bookstores, food cooperatives, religious meeting houses (Quakers and Unitarian Universalists are usually particularly receptive) may have meeting space available. Keep in mind issues such as safety, accessibility to public transportation and wheelchair accessibility, and try to select a place which is fairly neutral, to allow closeted people, or people new to bisexual identity the maximum possible safety. When you have found a meeting space, make sure to leave time to advertise. Usually 6-8 weeks is sufficient.

Contact information. It can be very helpful to list a telephone number or post office box which people can contact for more information. Should you list your own address or phone number? Some people feel comfortable doing this, others do not. One woman lists her telephone number with a pseudonym. That way she knows immediately whether someone is calling as a result of her ads or posters, and she feels safer because she is not giving out her real name. If you list your own number and have restrictions on when you are willing to be called, state that clearly in the flier or ad, such as "for info. call Maria at 222-2222 between 6 pm and 9 pm." Another option is to rent a voice mailbox (approximately $10/month), or to ask a local (or not too far away) lesbian/gay hotline, or lesbian/gay center, or women's center to serve as your contact phone number, at least for a limited time. Whatever method you choose, be sure to return all calls promptly, and to be discreet. Remember: homophobia exists, and not everyone is out to his/her roommate, parents, spouse, etc.

Covering Expenses: Keep expenses as low as possible, then "pass the hat" at the meeting. State what your expenses were, and propose a suggested amount, asking people to pay what they can.

Getting the Word Out: Advertising

Once you have located a site for your first meeting, you must let as many people as possible know that it is happening. There are a number of ways to do this, mostly through newspapers, fliers, and word of mouth.

Newspaper calendars and classified ads. Many newspapers will list events open to the public in a "calendar" section. Check your local newspaper to see whether they do this. Calendar listings are usually free. If a calendar listing is not possible, you my want to consider placing a brief classified ad. Keep it as short and inexpensive as possible, for example:

BISEXUAL support/discussion group forming. First meeting November 22, 7:30 p.m. at Local High School Cafeteria. Call (789)456-1234 for info.

Try to get this listing into as many publications as possible: the newspapers of nearby colleges, the nearest gay paper (even if it is based in another city or town), regional e-mail lists or bulletin boards, any local or regional newsletters (does a nearby Unitarian Universalist Church have a newsletter? Is there a women's center newsletter published nearby?)

Fliers. Make up a clear, concise 8 1/2 x 11 inch or other standard size poster about the meeting. State the time and place of the meeting, whether it is wheelchair accessible, what its purpose is: "to discuss the possible formation of an ongoing bisexual support group." Statements about confidentiality may be helpful, especially in a more conservative environment. Get these posters up in as many locations as possible: on bulletin boards in local progressive stores, on local campuses, in bookstores, at the nearest food coop, gay bars, etc. Use your imagination. One place you may want to consider postering is the inside of bathroom stalls. They sometimes stay up longer before getting pulled down, you will have a captive audience, and interested people can read them and copy down the information in total privacy.

Remember: when choosing where to place calendar listings and to hang posters, keep in mind that bisexual people are a very diverse group, and to reach the maximum number of people you will want to get the word out in many different locations. This means reaching people from all economic, racial, and ethnic backgrounds who are bi, gay, and straight identified.

Your First Meeting

Come to your first meeting prepared. Arrange chairs in a circle so that everyone can see each other and everyone is included. Here is one possible format for a first meeting: ▼ Welcome everyone. Discuss ground rules (respect for one another, confidentiality, sharing air time, no one has to speak who does not wish to.) Review the evening's agenda. Many people feel more comfortable when they know what to expect. Make sure that everyone is comfortable physically: let them know where the bathroom is, where they may and may not smoke, that they may get up and leave the room if they wish to, etc. ▼ Do some sort of "go-around" in which each person gets a chance to speak. Have each person say their name and answer a question or two (why they came, what they would like to get out of the meeting, an interesting fact about themselves.) One exercise which can be a good icebreaker is to have people divide into pairs. Within each pair, have each person interview the other for 3 minutes, then switch roles. When each has interviewed a partner, come back to the main group and go around the room, having each person introduce her/his partner: "This is Teresa. She is the mother of two children. She hates lima beans and likes to play rugby and the violin." ▼ Have a moderated discussion. Most people in a new group have had little or no opportunity to talk about issues related to bisexuality and are starving for a chance to talk. ▼ Set aside time to decide on the next step. Do people want to have another meeting, to start a group, etc.? Make sure that you do not leave the meeting without scheduling your next meeting. Pass around a phone list so that you (or someone else who is designated) have a way to reach people interested in meeting again.

Make sure that this meeting does not last more than 2 hours, or people will start to drift out and will miss the planning segment of the meeting. Keep an eye on the time, and try to leave 40 minutes or so for the planning segment. You may have to cut off an interesting conversation, but explain that you are asking people to cut the current conversation short to work out a way to continue the discussion later.

Subsequent Meetings

Depending upon the needs and desires of its members, support groups usually take one of four formats; Focus on personal support or empowerment. A personal support group would meet regularly and might focus on "go-arounds," with each member giving an update on current issues in her or his life. Other group members would listen and, sometimes, if asked, offer comments or advice, Occasionally, issues raised in the go-arounds might lead to impassioned political discussions over sexual politics and other issues. Focus on discussion of topics. A discussion-focused group would pick a topic in advance of each meeting. Topics might include: a book or article that everyone agreed to read and discuss, or a subject (the politics of marriage, bisexuality and feminism, coming out to one's children, parents, friends, partners, etc., dating, gender differences in relationships, monogamy and open relationships, safer sex, being bi in the gay community, etc.) Focus on activities. An activityfocused group might meet regularly for social activities: going out dancing, bowling, to the movies, to the beach, or renting and watching videos. ▼ A combination of the above. Brief go-arounds followed by a topic discussion, or go-arounds some weeks and topic discussions on others, with periodic social activities.

The group must decide where and how often to meet, and you must decide what type of commitment is expected from members. One suggestion is to meet weekly for a fixed period of time to form a sense of community and group cohesion and then to adjust your meeting to a less-intensive schedule. Another suggestion is to begin a personal support and empowerment group with several weeks of topic discussions to allow members time to build trust. You also need to decide whether to be an open or closed group. You might begin as an open group and then decide to close the group to new members at a later date, as the group coalesces. If you decide to close your group, you may wish to set up a mechanism for helping others form their own support groups. You may choose to rotate facilitators, or to have a regular volunteer or professional facilitator.

It is important to remember that, no matter what you do, not all groups will last. The group chemistry may not be right. If this happens, you may want to try again from the beginning.

Words Of Advice

Whenever possible, talk to other people who have experience in what you are trying to do. Talk to people who have started bisexual support groups in areas similar to yours, or who have started other types of support groups in your own community. We can learn from others' successes and mistakes.

Embrace diversity. While it may sometimes be more comfortable to have a group filled with people who are like you in terms of class, race, politics, etc., sometimes we learn more in a group where a variety of diverse voices are present.

Try, to the greatest extent possible, to accommodate people's needs. Is your meeting place wheelchair accessible? Are there pets, cigarette smoke, or other environmental substances present that members may be allergic to? Is your meeting place on public transportation for members without cars?

An occasional individual may contact you or show up at your meetings whose needs cannot be met by a support group. You may wish to have the names and phone numbers of the nearest hotline and of a couple of supportive therapists so that you can provide appropriate referrals.

Be clear in your advertising, and to new members that your group is not a dating service. Some support groups have policies stating that group members should not get romantically involved with one another.

Be aware that your group will provide support for many more people than actually attend meetings. The simple knowledge that there is a bisexual group meeting out there may be affirming to more people than you will ever know. And that is another good reason to get the word out.

If your group is an open group, try to make meeting time, place and contact information consistent. Some people may be terrified at the idea of attending a bisexual support group, and it may take them months to get up the courage to come to their first meeting. Make sure these people can find you.

Once your group is established, don't forget to get listed in the $Bisexual\ Resource\ Guide.$

CALLS FOR WRITING

Australian Bisexual Anthology. The Australian Bisexual Network invites submissions to their project to publish an anthology of bi writing from the Australian region. Personal stories, bi theory, poetry, cartoons, photographs, etc. are welcome from bi people and their partners or family members, and from bi and bi-inclusive groups in Australia, New Zealand, Papua New Guinea, Norfolk Island and other South Pacific Islands. We hope to collect submissions from a diverse group - cultural, ethnic, (trans-)gender, age, religion, community identity, etc. Send submissions to: Jacinta Toomey, 345 Boundary Street, West End, QLD 4101, Australia. (07) 38462427.

Bi Women welcomes writings by women: poetry, short fiction (up to 3 pages), news articles, opinion pieces, book and film reviews. Send writings to BBWN, PO Box 400639, Cambridge MA 02140, USA, or you can email them to ochs@bi.org for forwarding to Bi Women's editor.

Bisexual Erotic Stories Wanted: Sexually explicit fiction/semi-fiction of not more than 5000 words featuring bisexual characters & a representation of bisexual desire (detailed characters & some cultural context, rather than just sex acts), aiming to present a diversity of bisexual erotic writings, and desires which have previously been hidden in other erotic anthologies. Themes could include: celibacy, monogamy, nonmonogamy, gender transgression, fluid desire, identity politics, politics of biphobia, BDSM, bisexual culture, non-Western concepts of bisexuality, etc. Any genre ok (sci-fi, cyber, crime,horror, humor, coming out stories, etc...). The editorial group is comprised of activists within the UK bi community. Please send all pieces with a SSAE to PO Box 10048, London SE15 4ZD, UK. Email: klano@hotmail.com.

Book on Black Homosexuality. Seeking contributions, min. 6000 words, including areas such as bisexuality, coming out in the Black commmunity, gay racism, etc. For further info, write to: Delroy Constantine-Simms, The University of Hertfordshire, Watford Campus, Aldenham, Aldenham Hall, Watford WD2 8AT, United Kingdom. Children of Stonewall. Alyson Publications, a leader in gay & lesbian publishing, seeks personal essays from lesbians, gay men, bisexuals, & transgendered people born after (or shortly before) the Stonewall Riots of 1969. Looking for varied, engaging, thoughtful, well-written, surprising, personal, funny, introspective work. Particularly interested in essays about your younger years. Let's tell the world what it's like to inherit the older generations' legacy of relative freedom & pride – and trouble. Essays should be 1-15 pages, double spaced. Write for submission guidelines to: Robin Bernstein & Seth Silberman, Eds., Children of Stonewall, PO Box 11172, Takoma Park MD 20913, USA.

Disabled Women's Anthology. Are you a disabled dyke, two-spirited bisexual or transgendered woman? We want your writing for an anthology!! Stories, poems, narrative, & other writing as well as visual art (in black and white). We need more submissions from disabled Asian, Latina, African Canadian, African-American and Two-Spirited women to constitute real representation. Contact: Shelly Tremain c/o Women's Press, 517 College St. Suite 233, Toronto, Ontario Canada M6G 4A2. 416-921-2425.

Life in the Closet. Carol Riels, researcher/author, is gathering research for her next book, on alternative lifestyles. If you are les/bi/gay/trans and have not always been out, but rather tried to lives as straight, or at least presented yourself to others as straight before coming out, she would like to hear your story. Areas of interest include: 1) how the deception affected you; 2) what your emotions were during this time; 3) what you had to do to keep up the facade during this time; 4) what made you finally stop denying your true identity to yourself and others; 5) how you feel now; 6) how old you were when you realized how you were feeling; 7) what you would say to others who are having difficulty being true to themselves and to others; 8) what name you would like to use; 9) where you are from. You may share all that you want. Carol will edit out what may not be relevant to the book. If your story is used in the book, you may remain anonymous, use an alias, or use all or part of your real name. If your story is used, you will be sent an autographed copy, hot off the press, provided that you send Carol your mailing address. You may e-mail your story or inquiry to manyfaces@cedar-rapids.net.

Journal of Gay, Lesbian & Bisexual Identity, Warren Blumenfeld, editor. Announcing a scholarly forum containing peer-reviewed original articles, clinical studies, & high quality research papers that address the many factors involved in the discovery & assertion of one's sexual identity. Now accepting original manuscripts. For complete submission guidelines: Warren J. Blumenfeld, Editor, Journal of Gay, Lesbian & Bisexual Identity, PO Box 929, Northampton MA 01061. For subscription info: Human Sciences Press, Inc., Attn, Dept. HGL94., 233 Spring St., New York, NY 10013-1578, USA.

Queer Subjects. Contributions sought for a volume of essays on the question of queer subjects (as people & "disciplines"), academic life & the job market, especially essays exploring these overlapping topics from a personal perspective while making critical analyses of the material practices of academic scholarship, professional development, & institutional change. There exists very little personal or scholarly analysis of the material & intellectual constraints that scholars doing lesbian & gay studies face in academic contexts. Because such concerns are connected to & reinforced by larger questions of homophobia, heterosexism, & the viability of any kind of "identity-politics-based" research in academic settings, we want to include a wide range of contributions & hope to hear not only from younger scholars — graduate students & recent Ph.D.'s — about how they have negotiated the current highly limited job market but also from older, more established scholars who have been pioneers in the field or have entered it only after securing tenure. Seeking essays that look at the personal experiences of practitioners in the growing & changing field of queer studies, as well as contributions that explore the personal, academic, & institutional pressures on queers who, for various reasons, are not actively pursuing queer scholarship. Manuscripts should be 15-20 pages, double-spaced. Submit 2 copies of your manuscript: 1 to Toni McNaron, Department of English, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, MN 55401 & 1 to Scott Bravmann, 319 Church Street, San Francisco, CA 94114, USA, Email: braymann@aol.com.

A Wideness of Spirit: Testimonies of Bisexual People of Faith is an anthology in search of writings. Those following any spiritual path, including but not limited to: Jews, Christians, Pagans, UUs, Muslims, Hindus, Buddhists, Wiccans, people in 12-step recovery, and indigenous earth based traditions are invited to send essays, poems, songs, liturgy, etc. Those most likely to be selected are those under 20 pages, double-spaced, which speak passionately and clearly about the author's understanding of the intersections between sexual orientation and spirit path. The anthology will also seek to reflect race/class/gender/age/geographic/lifestyle diversity. The deadline will be mid-1999. Contact Deb Kolodny at: 301-565-0719, DebraRuth@aol.com, or 631 Ritchie Avenue, Silver Spring, MD 20910. Completed manuscripts along with discs should be sent to that address as well.

Finding Bisexuality in Literature

bi Robyn Ochs

This section of the Bisexual Resource Guide contains an annotated bibliography (or Bi-bliography) of books with bisexual content: books about the subject of bisexuality as well as books with bi characters. Now it's very easy to tell if a nonfiction book is about bisexuality: it's usually called Bisexual Lives, or Bisexual Politics, or something like that. But it's a lot harder to tell if a work of fiction is a "bisexual book."

After all, how do you determine who is "really" bisexual? Is a female character who is heterosexual at the beginning of the book and then falls in love with another woman and at the end of the book is still deeply in love with that woman "really" a bisexual, or is she "really" a lesbian? If she never labels herself as lesbian or bisexual, the reader will obviously be making a subjective interpretation. It is important to keep in mind that the author's intent and the readers interpretations are not always the same.

This was demonstrated to me very clearly in the winter of 1996 as I was organizing a panel at the Out/Write conference here in Boston. I provided conference organizer Michael Bronski with a list of approximately one dozen fiction writers whom I thought would be appropriate for a panel on bi characters in fiction. Michael called those on my list whom he thought most likely to attend the conference, and he reported back to me that one woman whom he had called, several of whose novels appear on my list of books with bi characters, had wondered aloud to him why she was being asked to be on this particular panel. "I don't write about bisexuals," she said, "I write about straight women who become lesbians." Well, she certainly could have fooled me, and, to be quite honest, I felt a sense of personal hurt and rejection when Michael reported what the novelist had said, though of course I recognize the right of the author to understand her own creations as she chooses.

It would not be an understatement to say that we are starved for reflections of our lives, and as a result we grab at whatever scraps we can find.

So, how can you recognize a bisexual? There is a presumption in Western cultures that all people are heterosexual, expanded somewhat in this century to the presumption that all people are either heterosexual or become homosexual. Bisexuality, for the most part, remains invisible—invisible, that is, except as a point of conflict or transition. In other words, an action or event must occur in order to make bisexuality visible to the viewer. Thus, with rare exceptions, the only bisexuals who are seen as bisexual are those who are known to be in relationships with more than one partner (of more than one sex), and bisexuals who are leaving a partner of one sex for a partner of a different sex. Bisexuals whose lives are celibate, monogamous, and/ or non-conflictual are not read as bisexual by the outside viewer, but rather as either straight or gay. Hence, there is an inevitable association of bisexuality with nonmonogamy, conflict and transition.

In our review of bisexuality in literature, certain general themes can be found.

One major theme is triangulation, usually accompanied by jealousy and the fracturing of one relationship for another. The bisexual person is usually located at the triangle's apex. Two examples of this are Anaïs Nin's Henry and June, which is about a triangulated relationship with between Henry, June and Anaïs, with June at the apex; and Earnest Hemmingway's Garden of Eden, with Catherine at the apex between Marita and David.

Then there's the "discovery novel," popular in lesbian literature of the 1970s, in which a previously heterosexual woman discovers her lesbianism by falling in love with a woman. Because at the end of the book she is happily paired with another woman, she is commonly read as a lesbian. But one might ask whether her previous relationships should be considered valid, as well as what questioning the stability of her identity over time; what this woman's future might hold, should her current relationship end. Despite statistical probability, because we live in a "happily ever after" culture, we are not supposed to ask this latter question. Another common character found in discovery novels is the woman (sometimes the (ex)partner of the woman described above) who can't handle the societal stigma attached to a same-sex relationship and "goes back" to men (is she really a lesbian unwilling to admit it, or is she really bi, or really straight?)

Another place we can sometimes find bisexuality is in fantasy/science fiction/ Utopian novels. Here, bisexuality is normal, a given, not stigmatized. By setting a story outside of the current reality, a great deal more leeway is allowed. A few examples are Starhawk's The 5th Sacred Thing, Samuel Delaney's Dhalgren, Marge Piercy's Woman on the Edge of Time, James Varley's Titan, Wizard, and Demon Series, and Melissa Scott's Burning Bright and Shadow Man.

Historical novels are another place to locate the elusive bisexual. Here, safely far away from the present time, men (and almost all of the historical bisexuals I ve been able to located are male) are bisexual — no big deal — though they re not called bisexual or gay. Examples: most of the historical novels by Mary Renault (about ancient Greece), and Lucia St. Clair Robson's Tokaido Road (which is set in 17th century Japan).

And then there's what I call "1970s bisexuality" where bisexuality equals free love. These novels are usually written by men and, in contrast to historical novels, the bisexuals characters are almost always women who share their voluptuous bodies with both women and (primarily) with men. Authors Robert Heinlein, Tom Robbins, and John Irving would all be included under this heading.

Then there's adolescent bisexuality, sometimes written off as youthful teenage experimentation: Hanif Kureishi's, The Buddha of Suburbia, and Felice Picano's, Ambidextrous.

Finally, there's the hedonistic bisexual who is often self-destructive and may leave a trail of broken lives (including his or her own), for example, Leonard Cohen's Beautiful Losers, Rupert Everett's Hello Darling, Are You Working?, and Carole Maso's The American Woman in the Chinese Hat.

But few authors actually use the "B-word." Among the few who do are Emma Donohue, Larry Duplechan, E. Lynn Harris, Dan Kavanagh, M.E. Kerr, and poets Michael Montgomery & Michelle Clinton.

In Vice Versa: Bisexuality and the Eroticism of Everyday Life, author Marjorie Garber says that we write our life histories backward, from the present, eliminating facts that do not fit our current stories. Someone who currently identifies as a gay man, therefore, might discount all past heterosexual experience, even if it felt meaningful and "real" at the time. And authors may do the same for their characters. Unlike those of us in the real world, the authors, of course, have this right: they can see into their characters minds. The characters are, after all, their creations.

Perhaps one thing I learned from my experience of trying to organize the writers panel is that, in my hunger to find myself in fiction, perhaps I was focusing too hard. Perhaps I can find aspects of myself not only in fictional characters that self-identify as bisexual, but also in the experiences of characters of various sexual orientations.

Labels are tools, which help us to describe ourselves to ourselves as well as to others. They are not fixed and unchanging essences. The reality is that each of us is unique. Labels, however useful, will never be fully adequate to the task of describing real people, and should not be confused with reality. In that sense, we may be able to find our own bisexual experiences in fiction, regardless of the self-identification of the character or the intent of the author.

That said, I present you with a list of books that contain within their pages some degree of bisexual content.

Bisexual Stories

An annotated bi-bliography

bi Robyn Ochs

All of the books listed below deal in some way with bisexual identity and/or behavior, though few of the narrators or characters in the books listed below use the word "bisexual." Rather, each book has at least one character whose life history can be interpreted to be bisexual. This list is by no means exhaustive; rather it is a place to begin. Your suggestions for books to be listed in future editions of this Guide are welcome. All books listed below are in English, except as noted. Many of these books can be ordered through the "Bisexual Bookstore" on the World Wide Web: http://www.biresource.org/bookstore/index.html.

[codes: m: primarily about men; w: primarily about women; m,w: about both men and women]

BIOGRAPHIES/AUTOBIOGRAPHIES

James Broughton, Coming Unbuttoned. San Francisco: City Lights Books, 1993. Born in 1913, poet and independent filmmaker Broughton takes us through his life in the San Francisco Bay Area, London and Paris. Though he does not delve into the meaning of his bisexual identity, he (and many others in his story) clearly identifies as such and over the course of his life had a number of relationships with men and women.

John Cheever, The Journals of John Cheever. NY: Knopf: 1990. Includes discussion of writer's bisexuality and extramarital relationships. (In case you were wondering, none of Cheever's fictional writings discuss bisexuality.) (m)

Cyril Collard, Savage Nights. Woodstock, NY: The Overlook Press1993 (originally published in French as Les Nuits Fauves). French writer, film director and actor writes of his HIV diagnosis and subsequent relationships with a 17 year old woman and two young men. Set in present-day Paris, this disturbing and powerful story, includes discussions of unprotected sex, anonymous s/m sex, and the difference for the author between sex with male and female partners. The author self-identifies as bisexual. (m)

Samuel R. Delaney, The Motion of Light in Water. NY: Arbor House, 1988. Fascinating autobiography of science fiction writer's teens and twenties in New York City, 1957-1965. While Samuel Delaney currently identifies as gay, his history and his former identification are bisexual. (m)

Ruth Falk, Women Loving: A Journey Toward Becoming an Independent Woman. NY: Random House, 1975. An autobiographical account of the author's journey, including her bisexuality. (w)

Barbara Guest, Herself Defined: The Poet H.D. and Her World. NY: Doubleday, 1984. Biography of American expatriate writer H.D (1886-1961). Thorough and respectful representation of her significant romantic relationships, which included both women and men. (w,m)

Anchee Min, Red Azalea. NY: Berkeley Books, 1994. Fascinating autobiography of a woman growing up in Maoist China. The woman Min loves in her youth, and perhaps Min herself, are bisexual. (w)

Kate Millett, Flying. NY: Simon & Schuster, 1974. and Sita. NY: Simon & Schuster, 1976. (w) 2 autobiographical novels by a self-identified bi who has been a leader of the modern women's movement. (w)

Nigel Nicolson, Portrait of a Marriage. London: Weidenfeld & Nicolson, 1973. Biography of Vita Sackville-West & Harold Nicolson by their son. Born late 19th-century, Vita was a self-identified bi woman of the British upper class in love with Violet Trefusis. (w,m)

Anaïs Nin, Henry and June. NY: Harcourt, Brace, Jovanovich, 1986. Nin's diary from 1931-1932, in which she recounts her relationships with her husband, Hugo, and with Henry and June Miller. Beautiful writing, much discussion about her relationships and their meaning to her. (w)

Greg Bear, Anvil of Stars. NY: Warner Books, 1992. A ship of children are set on a mission to locate and punish those who have destroyed Earth. These children are not bound by the old rules, and neither monogamy nor heterosexuality is enforced, although both seem to be presented as somewhat more satisfying and, perhaps, signs of a more mature, adult relationship. (m)

Samuel Delaney, Dhalgren. NY: Bantam Books, 1975. Disturbing story of a young drifter who enters the remains of a destroyed city. Set on earth in the more or less present time. The protagonist is bisexual, and a couple of the other characters have bisexual histories or experiences. (m)

Diane Duane, Door Into Fire. NY: Tom Doherty Associates, Inc., 1979. Door Into Shadow. NY: Tom Doherty Associates, Inc., 1984. Door into Sunset. NY: Tom Doherty Associates, Inc., 1992. Well-written fantasy series in which most people are bisexual. and homophobia is nonexistent. (m,w)

Robert A. Heinlein, Friday, NY: Ballantine Books, 1982. Set in a future society where casual sex, polyamory and sex between women are all considered acceptable. Interestingly (and a statement about the author and the time in which the book was written), heterosexual relationships are still privileged, and almost all of the women, but none of the men in the book is actively bisexual. (w)

Ellen Kushner, Swordspoint. NY: Tor Books, 1987. In a society where conflicts are settled by duels, a professional swordsman whose current relationship is with a man, and whose past love was a woman, is involved in the intrigues of the nobles, one of whom is a bisexual man. (m)

Mercedes Lackey and Ellen Guon, Summoned to Tourney. NY: Baen Publishing Enterprise (distributed by Simon & Schuster), 1992. Set in San Francisco and more or less in the present, a male elf is involved in a three way relationship with two humans (one male, one female). They are street musicians who ride magic steeds that look like motorcycles, and struggle to save San Francisco from destruction. (m)

Ursula LeGuin, The Dispossessed. NY: Granada Publishing, 1975. Set far in the future on a moon far from earth, this social utopian novel about anarchy involves a society in which there is no stigma attached to sexual orientation or sexual behavior. The protagonist, though primarily heterosexually oriented, has homosexual experiences as well. (m)

Vonda N. McIntyre, Starfarers. NY: Ace Books, 1989. Set on a research spaceship, a woman and two men are in a romantic partnership, and are considered by some old-fashioned because theirs is a closed relationship. (m)

R.M. Meluch, Chicago Red. NY: Roc (Penguin Books)1990. Set in post-democracy North America, where a king rules over impoverished peasants. Tow, the "king's assassin" and a not at all likeable man, is bisexual. (m)

Pat Murphy, Nadya. (NY: Tom Doherty, 1996). Set in the 1800s, a chronicle of the adventures of a young woman who becomes a wolf once a month. She travels from Missouri to the west coast.

and in the course of her travels falls for a man, and then a woman, and then a different man. (w)

Mary Rosenblum, Chimera. NY: Del Ray/Ballantine Books, 1993. It's the future, for many people life takes place as much in virtual reality as in the flesh world. At least one character in this book, David Chen, a virtual reality artist is clearly bisexual, though the "b-word" is not used. A good read.

Melissa Scott, Burning Bright. NY: Tor/Tom Doherty Associates, 1993. (mw?) Hi-tech sci-fi based on concept of virtual reality games. One male character and (likely) the female protagonist are bi. (m,w). Shadow Man. NY: Tor/Tom Doherty Associates, 1995. (mw) It's the future, and it has finally been determined that there are 5 sexes, not two. But the people on this one colony, unlike those on all of the other planets, haven't accepted that yet, with a resultant culture clash between indigenes and offworlders. With 5 sexes, there are 9 different sexual orientations, including bi, omni, demi and hemi.

Starhawk, The Fifth Sacred Thing, NY: Bantam Books, 1993. Futuristic utopian novel with two competing cultures: one egalitarian in which bisexuality is taken for granted, and the other oppressive and authoritarian. (m.w)

John Varley, Steel Beach. NY: Putnam, 1992. After the invasion of the earth, humans have moved to the moon (and elsewhere). In this society, people, who can now live a very long time, can be hetero-, homo-, or bisexually oriented, and also can (and sometimes do) change sexes surgically. The main character is (almost entirely) heterosexual, and is attracted to women when he is a man, and to men when she is a woman. Other characters are differently oriented. (m. w)

Margaret Weis and Tracy Hickman, Rose of the Prophet, Volumes I (1988), II (1988) and III (1989). NY: Bantam Books. 20 Gods rule the world, each with different abilities and his or her own followers, but now they are at war. This trilogy is the story of this war and the people involved. Mathew, an androgynous man, is in love with the other two central characters, a woman and her husband, though he never has a sexual relationship with either.

Walter Jon Williams, Aristoi. Set in the far future, all sexual orientations are accepted. Gabriel, the protagonist, the creator and leader of a number of worlds, has a number of concurrent relationships with men and women.

SELECTED OTHER FICTION

(This list is far from exhaustive.)

Alice Adams, Almost Perfect. (NY: Fawcett, 1993) Lifestyles of the (almost) rich and famous. Daugher of Mexican mother and famous Anglo father meets Anglo commercial artist who is unpredictable, drinks too much and is somewhat of a misogynist. Oh, and he is bisexual too, (m)

Lisa Alther, Five Minutes in Heaven. (NY: Dutton, 1995). (m,w) Three of the four main characters could all be classified more or less Kinsey-5s, and the fourth is - who knows, but much as she'd like to be, she's not a Kinsey 0. Bedrock. NY: Ivy Books, 1990. (w) 2 married women, best friends, & their love for each other. Other Women. NY: Knopf (Random House), 1984. (w) A woman with a bi history comes to terms, through therapy, with herself & her love for women. Original Sins. NY: Signet, 1982 (m,w) Story of 5 people growing up in Tennessee, including 2 with bisexual experiences. Kinflicks. NY: Knopf, 1976. (w). Woman with bi history struggles to understand herself & her relationship with her mother.

Carol Anshaw, Aquamarine. NY: Washington Square Press, 1992. (w) Interesting and thought-provoking novel which takes the life of a competitor in the 1968 Olympics and projects 20 years into her future. Three different possible futures are presented, each based on the reverberations of choices made shortly after the Olympics. In each of her equally possible futures, she has married or remained single, loved women or men, become a parent or not, stayed in her Missouri hometown or moved to New York City. Seven Moves. NY: Mariner Books (Houghton Mifflin), 1996. A lesbian therapist's lover disappears. One of her best friends (a minor character) is a woman married to a man who is also seeing another woman.

James Baldwin, Another Country. NY: Dell, 1985. (m) From 1960, about race, sexuality & friendship between men. Giovanni's Room. NY: Dell, 1988 (1956) (m). Two male expatriates in France, one from the US, one Italian, fall in love. One is engaged to be married to a woman. Beautifully written, lots of internal struggle and self-hatred. Tell Me How Long The Train's Been Gone. NY: Dell, 1968. (m) About an African American man who becomes an actor. Probably the most clearly bisexual of all of Baldwin's characters.

Ann Bannon, Odd Girl Out (Tallahassee: Naiad, 1983 — originally 1957) and Beebo Brinker (Tallahassee: Naiad, 1986 — originally 1962). Two in a series of 5 novels published in the late 50s and early 60s, these are fascinating representations of gay and bisexual life in that time period. Odd Girl Out is the story of two young college women who have a relationship until one leaves the other for a man. Beebo Brinker is the story of a lesbian in NY's Village scene. Several of the characters in the book could be characterized as bisexual. But beware: none of these characters are overly loveable.

Pat Barker, The Eye in the Door. NY: Plume/Penguin, 1993. Set in England during World War I, psychological novel about Billy Prior, an intelligence agent who is bisexual, as is one other male character. The Ghost Road. More about Billy Prior. Both of these books are excellent reads. (m)

Christopher Bram, Almost History. NY: Plume/Penguin, 1993. (m) Fascinating historical novel about a gay American diplomat who spends much of his career in the Marcos-controlled Philippines. Beginning in the 1950s and moving forward in time to just beyond the fall of the Marcos regime, many of the secondary male characters are bisexual in identity and/or behavior.

Rita Mae Brown, Rubyfruit Jungle. Plainfield, VT: Daughters, Inc., 1973. Most of the characters behave bisexually. About sexuality & growing up poor. Six of One. US & Canada: Bantam Books, 1978. (w) Set in a small southern town & spanning 1909-1980, the book has 2 bi women: the narrator and Ramelle. Southern Discomfort. NY: Bantam Books, 1982. (w) Set in Alabama,in the early 20th century, two secondary characters, Grace and Payson, are bisexual. Venus Envy. NY: Bantam Books, 1993. (w) Set in present day Virginia, about a woman's relationships with family and friends.

Jackie Calhoun, Lifestyles. Tallahassee, FL: The Naiad Press, 1990. Can be read as a bisexual or lesbian coming out story. A woman who has been left by her husband of many years meets and falls in love with another woman. (w)

Susan Taylor Chehak, Dancing on Glass. NY: Fawcett Crest, 1993. Man goes back to the town of his childhood to resurrect his family name. Falls in love with a woman whose family is historically interwoven with his, marries her, but then becomes obsessed with a teenaged boy. Kind of soap-operatic. (m)

Leonard Cohen, Beautiful Losers. NY: Vintage, 1966. Yes, that Leonard Cohen. The songwriter. Poetic, erotic and disturbing novel set in Montreal. Both of the male characters are bisexual. (m)

Nicole Conn, Claire of the Moon. Tallahassee: The Naiad Press, Inc., 1993. A (formerly) straight woman discovers love with a lesbian therapist (no, not hers) at a writers retreat. Just like the movie of the same name. (w)

Emma Donohue, Stir Fry. NY: HarperCollins, 1994. In Dublin, a 17-year-old woman begins university, discovers her 2 new women roommates are a couple. One of these self-identifies as bi. Hood. NY: Harper Collins, 1996. A lesbian in Ireland's life partner is a woman who has has a history with both men and women. Note: Emma Donohoe is a contributor to the Bisexual Horizons anthology. (w)

Larry Duplechan, Eight Days A Week. (Boston: Alyson, 1985). Takes place in Los Angeles, in the pre-AIDS era. Johnny Ray Rousseau, a 22 year old African-American nightclub singer by night, legal secretary by day, meets and falls for a blond bisexual banker who is portrayed as somewhat of a jerk not, however, because he is bisexual, but because he is possessive and wants Johnny Ray to give up his nightclub career to be home with him at night. Explicit sexuality and lots of musical references. (m).

Andrew Dworkin, Mercy. NY: Four Walls, Eight Windows, 1990. Unsettling story written in the first person of a girl who grows up and is abused by one man after another. Some of her various sexual relationships are with women. Well-written, upsetting, very graphic.

Brett Easton Ellis, The Rules of Attraction. NY: Penguin, 1987. Pretty depressing book about students at a private college with no direction who take lots of drugs, sleep with each other (while drunk or high), and never go to class. Most of the men sleep with lots of men and women; the women sleep with the men. (m)

Rupert Everett, Hello Darling, Are You Working? NY: Avon Books, 1992. The British narrator, Rhys, is a bisexual actor, drug addict, and sometimes prostitute. (m)

Harvey Fierstein, Torch Song Trilogy. NY: Villard Books, 1983. (A play.) The protagonist's lover/ex-lover Ed is a self-identified bisexual. He is also closeted and would prefer to be straight, but he makes makes progress through the play. Some focus on Arnold's unwillingness to accept that Ed might actually be bisexual. (m)

E.M. Forster, Maurice. NY: W.W. Norton & Co., 1971. About a homosexual man in love with another homosexual man who "goes straight." Is he bisexual? Historically. Is he in denial of his homosexual feelings? Probably. Are his heterosexual feelings "real"? Probably. Listed here mainly because it was written in 1913-1914, is beautifully written, and is one of the only early gay-themed novels that ends happily. (m)

Paul Goodman, Making Do. NY: Macmillan, 1963. Set in the very early 60s, several of the male characters are bisexual, none of the women. This book is definitely disturbing, replete with racism, misogyny, violence, though interesting as a look at a specific time and place in history. Certainly helps you to understand the subsequent rise of feminism & lesbian separatism. (m)

Stephanie Grant, The Passion of Alice. NY: Houghton Mifflin, 1995. Set in Massachusetts in the mid 1980s. About a hospitalized anorexic woman. Maeve, a bulimic woman on the same ward, and a major character in this book, is behaviorally bisexual, though there is no discussion of identity. (w)

Carol Guess, Seeing Dell. Pittsburgh: Cleis Press, 1995. Dell, a taxi driver, has died suddenly, leaving behind two lovers, one male, one female. Set in a small town in the midwestern United States, it's refreshing to see a novel about working class people. (w)

Diana Hammond, The Impersonator. NY: Doubleday, 1992. Story of a sexually compelling man who lacks inner direction and gets through life by dissembling and by attaching himselves to various lovers, one of whom is a man. There are 2 male characters who could be called bisexual. (m)

Joseph Hansen, Job's Year. NY: Plume Fiction, 1983. About a primarily gay actor with other bi characters as well) (m,w); A Smile in His Lifetime. NY: Plume Fiction, 1981. A married man dealing with his homosexuality. (m) Backtrack. London: GMP, 1982 and NY: The Countryman Press, 1987. A primarily gay young man trying to find out who murdered his primarily gay father. (m) Steps Going Down. NY: Penguin Books, 1982. There are two bisexual men in this crime book, both utterly unlikeable but then this book contains unlikeable characters of several sexual orientations. (m)

E. Lynn Harris, Invisible Life. NY: Doubleday, 1991 (m) and Just As I Am (NY: Doubleday, 1994) (m) A middle class African American man struggles to deal with his bisexuality and with issues of coming out. Issues such as: relationships, being in the closet, dis/honesty, HIV, etc. And This Too Shall Pass (NY: Doubleday, 1996). A pro football player comes to identify as gay. A few of the other male characters in the book could be identified as bisexual, especially Basil, the closeted and dishonest man who appears in Harris' earlier books.

Ernest Hemingway, The Garden of Eden. NY: Collier Books, 1986 (written 1961). His last work, about a male/female couple & a woman who enters their relationship. Transgender issues, jealousy, bisexuality. (w). Also, among his collections of short stories is one called "The Sea Change" in which a woman tells her male beloved that she has fallen in love with a woman.

Greg Johnson, Pagan Babies. NY: Plume (Penguin), 1993. Since their days together in Catholic school, Janice and Clifford's lives are intertwined. Janice is straight, and Clifford gay—well, except that he and Janice are boyfriend/girlfriend for years, with an active sexual relationship during some of that time. This novel is about growing up Catholic in the US, about AIDS, friendship, expectations and disappointments. (m)

Dick Kavanagh (pseudonym of Julian Barnes), Duffy, NY: Pantheon Books, 1980., Fiddle City, Putting the Boot In NY: Penguin, 1987, and Going to the Dogs (1987). Standard English detective fare, except that the protagonist, Duffy, is a bisexual excop. (m)

M.E. Kerr, Hello, I Lied. NY: Harper Collins, 1997. A teenaged boy summering in East Hampton in a cottage on an estate where his mother is employed as cook for a retired rock star, has a boyfriend back in New York, is dealing with what it means to have a gay identity, and then falls in love with a French girl who is a guest of the rock star. Oops, is he really gay? What are his friends going to think now? (m)

James Kirkwood, P.S. Your Cat is Dead. NY: Warner Books, 1972. An underemployed NYC actor/writer catches the (bi) burglar who is in the process of robbing him (not for the first time), and ties him up in his kitchen. The actor's recently deceased best friend and one other character, are also bisexual. Entertaining. (m)

Edith Konecky, A Place at the Table. NY: Ballantine Books, 1989. Middle aged Rachel is "a perfectly ordinary woman who sometimes falls in love with other women."

Hanif Kureishi, The Buddha of Suburbia. NY, London, etc.: Penguin Books, 1990. In suburban London, the story of the bi son of an Indian father & English mother. (m,w)

D.H. Lawrence, The Fox. NY: Bantam Books, 1923, 1951. In rural England, two women living together as a couple. Tensions arise with the arrival of a man who courts one of the women. No explicit bisexuality, but the two women are obviously, sexual or not, a couple. (w)

Jane Lazarre, The Powers of Charlotte. Freedom, CA: The Crossing Press, 1987. A psychological novel about a woman from a Jewish Communist family. Bisexuality is not a central theme, but 4 characters have varying degrees of bisexual histories. (m, w)

Rosamond Lehman, Dusty Answer. London/NY: Harcourt Brace Janovich, Inc., 1927. A young wealthy English woman's search for love. Both the man and the woman with whom she falls in love are, ultimately, unattainable. Quite an amazing book, considering it was published in 1927. I'm surprised it isn't better known. (w, m)

Jennifer Levin, Water Dancer. NY: Penguin Books, 1994. A marathon swimmer, training for a race, stays with her trainer and his wife. This book is about motivation, about relationships, about swimming, and has a bisexual character. (w)

Erika Lopez, Flaming Iguanas: An Illustrated All Girl Road Novel Thing. NY: Simon & Schuster, 1997. Two twenty-something Puerto Rican women from New Jersey take off across the US on newly acquired motorcycles. Tomato Rodriguez, the narrator, is trying to figure out whether she's bisexual. This book is unique and highly entertaining. (w)

Daniel Magida, The Rules of Seduction. Boston: Houghton Mifflin, 1992. Jack Newland is a wealthy New York socialite who has had relationships with both men and with women, as have some of his male friends. (m)

Dacia Maraini, Women at War. NY: Italica Press, 1988. (originally published in Italian as Donna in guerra). A working class schoolteacher and her mechanic husband vacation in the Bay of Naples. Previously passive and unpolitical, Vannina meets various people and begins to develop a feminist and political consciousness. This book has female and male bisexual characters. Letters to Marina (originally published in Italian in 1981 as Lettere a Marina) (Freedom, California, 1988: The Crossing Press). A feminist woman talks about her past and current experiences in the form of a series of letters to Marina, a woman who is her ex-lover. She, and some of her past and present lovers, love both men and women. This book was referred to me by the author as a book with bisexual characters, when I told her of this project.

Carole Maso, The American Woman in the Chinese Hat. NY: Penguin Books, 1994. Shortly after her brother's death from AIDS, a New York writer named Catherine leaves her woman lover of 12 years and comes to the French Riviera, where she comes apart, having a number of affairs, with men and women, in the process. British novel about a bisexual boxer in love with a prostitute who has sex with men for money and an ongoing relationship with the protagonist, who also becomes seriously involved with a female prostitute. About life on the streets of South London. The front cover says "Amoral. Bisexual. In love ...?" (m)

Mary Wings, She Came By The Book. NY: Berkeley Prime Crime Book, 1996. Set in San Francisco's gay community, this murder mystery includes a very, very minor bisexual plot twist. It's interesting nonetheless, if you're interested in a story that's not too far off from real life community politics.

Jeanette Winterson, The Passion. NY: Vintage International (Random House), 1987. (w) Set in France and Italy during Napoleon's reign, one of the protagonists is a bisexual woman. Written on the Body. NY: Vintage International (Random House), 1992. Set in the present, a tale of love between the narrator and a married woman. The name and gender of the narrator (who talks of past relationships with men and with women) is never stated. Reading this book is an interesting and somewhat unsettling experience. Gut Symmetries. NY: Knopf, 1997. Two physicists, one male, one female, have an affair. He is married, she is single. She meets and falls in love with his wife. Beautifully written story of a romantic triangle. (w)

Shay Youngblood, Soul Kiss. Young African American girl is left at age 7 by her addict mother with two "aunts" (actually a couple). This book is about her growing up, her search for love, and the development of her sexuality. I'm not sure whether she would call herself bisexual, but her experience is bisexual. This book is beautifully written. (w)

Eda Zahl, Fluffy Butch. London: Mandarin Fiction, 1994. Quirky novel about a young woman living in Los Angeles who dates men and women. The back cover says: "How do you learn to love men? Mary learns by shaving her head, moving to Los Angeles and dating women. To her amazement bald Mary begins to view the world from a man's point of view. She even begins to sympathise with them. Worse, she starts to date them again. Mary finds herself having affairs with men and women, sometimes women and men—who knows who she'll end up with?" (w)

SHORT STORIES:

Ruthann Robson, Eye of a Hurricane. Ithaca, New York: Firebrand Books, 1989. Some of these short stories have bisexual characters. (w)

Jane Rule, Inland Passage. Tallahassee, FL: Naiad Press, 1985. "His Nor Hers," "Puzzle," and possibly also "Inland Passage" have bisexual characters.

If you have trouble finding any of the books in this section at your local bookstore, many are available through the Bisexual Resource Center's on-line Bisexual Bookstore at http://www.biresource.org/bookstore. Books purchased through the Bisexual Bookstore generate money that helps the BRC produce conferences, pamphlets, and this Bisexual Resource Guide.

A Reader's Guide to Non-Fiction Books, Chapters, and Journal Articles on Bisexuality

bi Ronald C. Fox with Robyn Ochs

Copyright @1999 Ronald C. Fox and Robyn Ochs

The following books, book chapters, and journal articles are a diverse collection of recommended non-fiction readings that focus on bisexual identity and/or behavior and take an affirmative approach to bisexuality and bisexual issues. We have highlighted a few items in each section with a ▼ symbol that we consider good places to begin. All materials listed below are in English, except as noted. This list is by no means exhaustive; rather it is a work in progress. Your suggestions for books, chapters, and journal articles to be listed in future editions of the Guide are welcome, including in languages other than English. Many of the books listed can be ordered through the "Bisexual Bookstore" on the World Wide Web, located at: http://www.biresource.org/bookstore/index.html.

Notable Films with Bisexual Characters

compiled bi Wayne Bryant

The following is a list of notable films containing one or more bisexual characters. Most of these films are available on video and described in further detail in the author's book, Bisexual Characters in Film: from Anaïs to Zee. Not all of the bi characters in these films portray positive images of bisexuality. Some of these have been included because of their historical or social significance. Those which are particularly negative are noted. For each film listed, the format is as follows:

Name of film (alternate name, if any) • Country • Director • Year of release

If you have trouble finding bi films at your nearby lackluster video store, nearly all of the movies listed here are available for rent or purchase at the Bisexual Videostore on the web. The URL is:

Videos rented or purchased through this site help to finance projects of the Bisexual Resource Center, such as this Bisexual Resource Guide.

Comedy

Beyond Therapy • USA • Robert Altman • 1986 Offbeat comedy starring Jeff Goldblum as the bisexual and Glenda Jackson as his therapist.

California Suite • USA • Herbert Ross • 1978 A star-studded cast including Michael Caine, Bill Cosby, Jane Fonda, Walter Matthau, Richard Pryor, and Alan Alda. Based on a Neil Simon play.

Beyond Therapy

Chasing Amy • USA • Kevin Smith • 1997

Ostensibly the story of a straight male cartoonist who falls in love with a lesbian female cartoonist. Beneath the surface it's really about the two guys, their complex relationship, and the difficulty of defining one's sexuality. Highly recommended.

Dallas Doll · Australia · Ann Turner • 1994

Bisexual actress Sandra Bernhard stars as an American golf pro who moves in with an Australian family and ends up sleeping with all the ones who are of legal age.

Entertaining Mr. Sloane • USA • Douglas Hickox • 1970

An adaptation of Joe Orton's play about a handsome bisexual killer who is in relationships with a brother and sister.

Even Cowgirls Get the Blues • USA • Gus van Sant • 1993

Uma Thurman plays Sissy Hankshaw, a bisexual woman who was born to travel. Based on the Tom Robbins novel. Uneven acting throughout, but excellent music by kd lang.

French Twist (Gazon Maudit) • France • ÊJosiane Balasko • 1995

A French farce in which a housewife falls in love with a lesbian whose van broke down at her doorstep. Stars Victoria Abril. A fun film despite some heavy-handed stereotypes.

Even Cowgirls Get the Blues

Go Fish • USA • Rose Troche • 1993

A humorous look at lesbian relationships in the 90s. Lesbian attitudes toward bisexual women are examined through a character who also sleeps with men.

Grief • USA • Richard Glatzer • 1993

Alexis Arquette plays the bi character in this comedy about the soap opera going on behind the production of a TV soap opera. Paul Bartel, who has directed other films with bisexual characters, plays the judge.

The Hotel New Hampshire • USA • Tony Richardson • 1984

Includes a love scene between Jodie Foster and Nastassja Kinski. Also starring Rob Lowe and Wallace Shawn.

The Incredibly True Story of Two Girls in Love • USA • Maria Maggenti • 1995

Same-sex love crosses race and class boundaries. Bisexual characters. The director identifies as "omni-sexual."

Late Bloomers • USA • Julia Dyer • 1997

Two married women discover the unexpected pleasures of a same-sex relationship.

Love and Human Remains . Canada . Denys Arcand . 1993

Combination comedy and thriller. A serial killer is stalking the streets of Toronto. Ruth Marshall plays the main character's bisexual roommate.

May Fools (Milou en Mai) - France - Louis Malle - 1990

"Mommy, why does Auntie Claire tie up her friend at night?" With Miou-Miou as the arch-conservative sister.

My Father is Coming • Germany/USA • ÊMonika Treut • 1990

A German woman's father is coming to visit her in New York and doesn't know that she is single and unemployed. Co-stars Annie Sprinkle as herself.

New Year's Day • USA • Henry Jaglom • 1990

A Californian (Jaglom) rents an apartment in Manhattan, only to discover that the previous tenants have not yet moved out. "Everybody out there [Los Angeles] is bisexual."

The Opposite of Sex • USA • Don Roos • 1998

Christina Ricci stars as a bad-assed teen who seduces her brother's boyfriend.

Relax, It's Just Sex • USA • P.J. Castellaneta • 1998

Sex and relationships in the '90s. Serena Scott Thomas plays the bi character.

A Rose By Any Other Name • USA • Kyle Schickner • 1997

A straight man and a "lesbian" fall in love. Their friends don't get it. Written and directed by a bisexual who definitely does (get it).

Scenes from the Class Struggle in Beverly Hills • USA • Paul Bartel • 1989

It's the servants vs. the elite in this sex farce starring Jacqueline Bisset, Mary Woronov, Wallace Shawn, and Ed Begley Jr.

Their First Mistake • USA • George Marshall • 1932

Laurel and Hardy perform simply the finest gender-bending roles of their era.

Biographical:

Becoming Colette • Germany/France/USA • Danny Huston • 1991

The story of a young bisexual woman who became one of France's greatest writers.

Carrington • UK • Christopher Hampton • 1995

This historical drama ignores its Bloomsbury Group setting and curiously neglects Carrington's bisexuality, while highlighting her husband's. Starring Emma Thompson.

Chanel Solitaire • France/UK • George Kaczender • 1981

The story of a young bisexual woman who became one of France's greatest designers.

Henry and June • USA • Philip Kaufman • 1990

The story of a young bisexual woman who kept one of France's greatest diaries. Stars Uma Thurman as June.

Total Eclipse • UK • Agnieszka Holland • 1995

A film about the stormy relationship between poets Paul Verlaine and Arthur Rimbaud. Not the most positive portrayal of bisexuals.

Henry and June

Wilde • UK • Brian Gilbert • 1998

The best of several films about the tribulations and trials of Oscar Wilde.

Musical:

The Adventures of Priscilla, Queen of the Desert • Australia • 1994

Three drag queens (a gay man, a bisexual, and a transsexual) lip sync their way across the Australian outback. Great music and fabulous costumes, but gratuitous sexism.

Cabaret • USA • Bob Fosse • 1972

Based on stories by gay author Christopher Isherwood. Stars Joel Grey, Liza Minelli, and Michael York.

Zachariah • USA • George Englund • 1970

Billed as "the first electric western." Stars drummer Elvin Jones. Great music by the New York Rock Ensemble, Country Joe and the Fish, The James Gang, and Doug Kershaw.

Historical:

The Bostonians • UK • James Ivory • 1984

Written by gay author Henry James, the main character is based on his bisexual sister. Like most Ivory films, it is a period piece with beautiful costumes and scenery.

Queen Christing • USA • Rouben Mamoulian • 1933

Greta Garbo stars as the bisexual queen of Sweden. She kisses the countess and dresses in male drag.

Spartacus • USA • Stanley Kubrick • 1960 (restored 1991)

The restored version depicts Crassus (Laurence Olivier) as bisexual, attempting to seduce his slave. This scene was cut from the original release. Also stars Peter Ustinov, Laurence Olivier, Tony Curtis, Woody Strode, Charles Laughton and Kirk Douglas.

A Special Day (Una Giornata Particolare) • Italy • Ettore Scola • 1977

Marcello Mastroianni plays a gay man who falls for the charms of Sophia Loren. Set in Mussolini's Italy.

Drama:

Advise and Consent • USA • Otto Preminger • 1962

A political struggle in the U.S. Senate causes the revelation of many secrets. Stars Henry Fonda, John Granger, and Charles Laughton (as the Jesse Helms character).

All Over Me • USA • Alex Sichel • 1997

Major teen angst about sexuality, drugs, home life and more.

Bar Girls • USA • Marita Giovanni • 1994

A lesbian film with lots of bi women and "sudden conversions." Most of the action takes place in an upscale L.A. lesbian bar. Look for a cameo by Chastity Bono.

Basic Instinct • USA • Paul Verhoeven • 1992

Every bisexual or lesbian woman in the film is a killer. Stars Sharon Stone and Michael Douglas.

Bound • USA • Andy & Larry Wachowski • 1996

A gangster moll conspires with a female ex-convict to steal a fortune from the mob. In the process they fall in hot, passionate lust.

Chantilly Lace • USA • Linda Yellen • 1993

Made for TV movie about women and friendship in the 90s. Lots of improvised dialogue. The b-word is actually used.

Claire of the Moon • USA • Nicole Conn • 1992 • 102m

An anal-retentive lesbian and a sloppy bisexual woman share a cabin at a writers retreat. They are at each other's throats until they finally fall in lust. The ending, though highly predictable, is worth the wait.

Crash • Canada/UK/France • David Cronenberg • 1996

The story of group of people (some of whom are bisexual) who with a fetish for bodies which have been deformed by car crashes. Decidedly not for the weak of stomach.

The Crying Game • UK • Neil Jordan • 1992

A bisexual British soldier is taken hostage by the Irish Republican Army. His captor's life is changed forever.

Dakan • Guinea • Mohamed Camara • 1997

A rare African film with bi male characters. Sori and Manga are schoolmates who are attracted to women, but ultimately come to understand that their first love is each other.

Desert Hearts

Desert Hearts • USA • Donna Deitch • 1985

Breakthrough film about a conservative woman going through a divorce who falls in love with a wild, young lesbian (Patricia Charbonneau) in the desert.

El Diputado (The Deputy or Confessions of a Congressman) • Spain • Eloy de la lalesia • 1978

A married Spanish congressman with a particular interest in young men is framed by the fascists.

Dog Day Afternoon • USA • Sidney Lumet • 1975

Al Pacino plays a bisexual who robs a bank to get money for his lover's sex-change operation. Based on a true story.

The Doom Generation • USA • Gregg Araki • 1995

It isn't easy to shock movie-viewers these days, but Araki gives it his best shot. This road movie features foul-mouthed teens, psycho killers, and sweaty bi sex.

Erotique • USA/Germany/Hong Kong • Lizzie Borden, Monika Treut & Clara Law • 1993

Three short films by women directors. Two have bisexual characters. The first of these, "Let's Talk About Sex" was co-written by bisexuals, Lizzie Borden and Susie Bright.

Exotica • Canada • Atom Egoyan • 1995 • 103m

An excellent film about some very disturbed people who work at, or frequent a strip club. This movie is a study in eroticism, secrecy, and despair.

Flirting with Disaster • USA • David O. Russell • 1996

The character called Tony actually calls himself bisexual. Not the world's most likable guy, but no worse than the other characters.

The Fourth Man (De Verde Man) • Netherlands • Paul Verhoeven • 1983

A man falls in love with another man whom he passes on a train, only to find that they are both in love with the same dangerous woman.

High Art • USA • Brandon Williams • 1998

A young and aspiring magazine writer learns that her drugged-out upstairs neighbor was once a well-known photographer. The two women mix work with play.

Higher Learning • USA • John Singleton • 1995

A film about racism and the struggle for identity. Loaded with cardboard characters, including a student who is "confused" about her sexuality.

I've Heard the Mermaids Singing • Canada • Patricia Rozema • 1982

Polly, an inept temp worker, falls in love with her new boss. She later discovers the woman's darkest secrets.

Law of Desire (La ley del deseo) • Spain • Pedro Almodóvar • 1987

Almodóvar's semi-autobiographical film about the loves and losses of a gay film director. A wide range of sexualities are represented.

Lost Language of Cranes • UK • Nigel Finch • 1991

Based on David Leavitt's novel about a gay man and his father who come out to each other

Mass Appeal • USA • Glenn Jordan • 1984

Jack Lemon as a parish priest who hates confrontation, but finds himself defending a bisexual divinity student.

Nea • France • Nelly Kaplan • 1976

Comic drama about a teenage girl who writes a best-selling erotic novel. She encourages her mother's love for another woman.

Nowhere • USA • Gregg Araki • 1997

The third film in Araki's generation X trilogy. Bisexual characters abound (along with sex, drugs, music, and a space alien). Shortly after the film was released, the director, known as a gay icon, revealed that he has a girlfriend.

Paris France - Canada - Gerard Ciccoritti - 1993

Lucy decides that her writer's block can be broken if she can just recreate the wild sexuality of her Paris years. Her husband and lover are both bi.

Peter's Friends • UK • Kenneth Branagh • 1992

Peter invites his old school friends for a New Year's reunion and the sharing of revelations. An appalling bit of overacting by the director.

Pigalle • France/Switzerland • Karim Dridi • 1994

Fifi, the bisexual hustler, Vera, the private dancer, and Divine, the transvestite hooker are among the denizens of this seedy Paris neighborhood.

The Pillow Book • France/UK/Netherlands • Peter Greenaway • 1997

A sumptuous visual treat, this is the story of a Japanese woman obsessed with the human body as calligraphy canvas. Her father and lover are both bisexual.

The Rainbow • UK • Ken Russell • 1989

Amanda Donohoe and Sammi Davis play teacher and student who fall in love. Glenda Jackson as the mother.

Savage Nights (Les Nuits Fauves or Wilde Maechte) • France • Cyril Collard • 1993

Writer/director/star Collard's story of a self-absorbed bisexual man who is HIV positive and makes no attempt to protect his lovers. Won four Cæsar awards just days after Collard's death.

Steam • Italy/Turkey/Spain • Ferzan Ozpetek • 1997

Francesco inherits a Turkish bath from his aunt. He leaves his wife in Rome and heads for Istanbul to dispose of his property. When he sees the bathhouse, he falls in love with it, and the caretaker's son.

Street Kid (Gossenkind) • Germany • Peter Kern • 1991

A young bi hustler with fabulous hair earns his living in the streets of Dusseldorf, Germany.

Sunday Bloody Sunday • UK • John Schlesinger • 1971

The trials of triads. Murray Head appears in the role of a young artist whose older lovers are played by Peter Finch and Glenda Jackson.

Three of Hearts • USA • Yurek Bogayevicz • 1993

A lesbian hires a male "escort" to seduce and then dump her bisexual ex-lover in hopes that she can win her back.

Threesome • USA • Andrew Fleming • 1994

A woman is mistakenly assigned to the dorm room of two men. Each becomes attracted to the roommate who is not attracted to them. The bisexual character is treated as "confused."

La Truite (The Trout) • France • Joseph Losey • 1982

Frederique is so attractive that her gay husband falls in love her. So do lots of other people, of various sexualities.

Victim • UK • Basil Dearden • 1961

Dirk Bogarde plays a bisexual lawyer whose marriage and career are threatened by a blackmail scheme.

A Village Affair • UK • Moira Armstrong • 1997

Martin and Alice move to the country, where his roving eye comes to rest on Clodagh, the daughter of wealthy neighbors. But Clodagh only has eyes for Alice.

The Watermelon Woman • USA • Cheryl Dunye • 1997

A young African-American woman searches for the identity of an actress identified in old film credits only as The Watermelon Woman. In the process she finds a lot more, including (briefly) a bisexual lover.

When Night is Falling • Canada • Patricia Rozema • 1995

Love story between a previously-straight woman who teaches at a religious school and a lesbian who is a performance artist in a circus. Unjustly rated NC-17. Highly recommended.

Wild Things • USA • John McNaughton • 1998

Neve Campbell, Kevin Bacon, and Matt Dillon star in this less-than-thrilling thriller. The bisexuality is treated matter-of-factly, but the sex is mostly gratuitous.

Women in Love • UK • Ken Russell • 1970

Based on the D.H. Lawrence novel. Features an extended nude male wrestling scene. Stars Alan Bates and Glenda Jackson.

X, Y & Zee (Zee and Company) - USA - Brian Hutton • 1971

Elizabeth Taylor seduces Susannah York in order to get her away from Michael Caine. A decidedly bad and dated film that must be seen.

Your Friends and Neighbors • USA • Neil LaBute • 1998

If you have friends and neighbors like this, run far away, change your name, and start a new life. Definitely not a date movie. Excellent acting by Amy Brenneman and the ensemble.

Y and Zee

Cult:

Black Lizard • Japan • Kinji Fukasaku • 1968

An actor in drag plays a bisexual female master thief. One of the campiest films of all time. Screenplay by bisexual author, Yukio Mishima, who also appears in the film.

Cult of the Damned (Angel, Angel, Down We Go) • USA • Robert Thom • 1969

Holly Near plays the spoiled daughter of a wealthy couple. Her boyfriend and father are bi. Embarrassingly bad movie.

The East Is Red • Hong Kong • Ching Siu-Tung & Raymond Lee • 1993

A classic Hong Kong martial arts film in which the hero is a transgendered bisexual. Lots of blood.

Faster Pussycat! Kill! Kill! (Leather Girls, Mankillers) • USA • Russ Meyer • 1965

The classic 60s sexploitation film. Three go-go dancers (one lesbian, one bi, and one straight) drive their sports cars into the desert and terrorize everyone they meet.

Flesh • USA • Paul Morrissey • 1968

A young and beautiful Joe Dallesandro plays a bisexual hustler who is trying to raise money for an abortion for his wife's girlfriend. One of the best of the Warhol films.

Liquid Sky • USA • Slava Tsukerman • 1983

Alien beings in search of opiates discovers that orgasms produce the very best. They lands atop the apartment building of the bisexual Margaret and change her life.

The Rocky Horror Picture Show • UK • Jim Sharman • 1976

This science fiction parody is the queen of camp cult films, starring Tim Curry and Meatloaf as two of many bisexual characters. Great music by Richard O'Brien, who plays Riff Raff.

The Sticky Fingers of Time • USA • Hilary Brougher • 1997

This low-budget, campy sci-fi flick features several bisexual characters. A writer goes out for a cup of coffee in 1953 and ends up in the East Village in 1997, unaware that a nuclear explosion has mutated her soul.

Mysteries:

The Color of Night • USA • Richard Rush • 1994 • 136m

Bruce Willis as a psychologist who takes over his murdered friend's therapy group to discover who killed him. Jane March is excellent as the bisexual character, Rose.

Deathtrap • USA • Sidney Lumet • 1982

Michael Caine is a writer who plans a murder in order to overcome a bad case of writer's block. But who is the intended victim? His wife? His lover? Lots of great plot twists.

The Last Of Sheila • USA • Herbert Ross • 1973 James Cockburn sets an elaborate trap to discover the hit-and-run driver who killed his wife. Many more discoveries are made along the way. Star-studded cast.

Deathtrap

Horror:

Blood and Roses (Et Mourir de Plaisir) • France/Italy • Roger Vadim • 1960

Carmilla is obsessed with her vampire ancestor of two hundred years earlier. She is taken over by the vampire's spirit.

Dracula's Daughter • USA • Lambert Hillyer • 1936

The first in a long tradition of female bisexual vampires on film. She falls in love with her (male) doctor and seduces a (female) prostitute.

The Hunger • USA • Tony Scott • 1983

Beautifully filmed story about a bisexual vampire in search of a new lover. Hot love scene between Catherine Deneuve and Susan Sarandon. Also starring David Bowie.

Interview With the Vampire • USA • Neil Jordan Scott • 1994

Starring Tom Cruise, Brad Pitt, and Antonio Banderas. Not as explicitly bisexual as the book, but the erotic tension can be cut with a knife.

Lair of the White Worm • UK • Ken Russell • 1988

Amanda Donohoe is a vampirish snake-woman who seduces her prey, both male and female before feeding them to the snake god.

Lust for a Vampire (To Love a Vampire) • UK • Jimmy Sanaster • 1970

A student seduces and kills classmates and teachers at a boarding school.

The Vampire Lovers • UK • Roy Ward Baker • 1970

SAFER & SEXIER

bi Cianna Stewart

Get nude.

Ask yourself a few questions:

Do you like having sex?

Do you feel like you deserve to have a good time during sex?

What kind of sex do you like?

Do you know what you like during sex?

Do you like your body?

Do you know what will make you feel good during sex?

Do you feel like you should be able to get what you want during sex?

Do you know how to ask for what you want?

Do you know how to say that something does not feel good?

Do you know how to say something would feel better if...

Do you like to talk during sex?

Do you like to talk before having sex?

Do you hate to talk about sex?

What words to you use for your body?

What words to you use for someone else's body?

What words to you use to for different sexual/sensual acts?

What kind of sex makes you feel unsafe?

What are your boundaries?

What are your partner's boundaries?

Are you more willing to stop doing something altogether, or to try doing it with latex?

You know, it's OK to have a hard time with safer sex. In fact, you would be unusual if you never had any difficulty either introducing the topic or in being 100% consistently safe.

What is most important is to recognize that getting to be safe is a series of steps. Even those of us who have been doing it for a while started somewhere, and even we have to negotiate with every new partner. Many of us still have some things that are hard for us, and most of us have gone through some kind of grieving over that "other" kind of sex.

So there's this thing out there called HIV, and while it seems like it's everywhere, you can actually track its path, and stop it before it gets to you. Really.

Who me?

HIV has no biases for or against a group of people. It does, however, have a particular fondness for bodily fluids which have a high level of white blood cells, and for activities which transmit those fluids from one person to another. It therefore affects all people doing certain "unsafe" activities, regardless of sexual identity, gender, age, race, ability, class or regional location.

Yes, you.

"Bodily Fluids"?

HIV lives in white blood cells. Fluids with a high concentration of white blood cells are blood, semen, vaginal fluids (i.e. cum, discharge, ejaculate, etc.). HIV may be transmitted through breast milk. Menstrual blood contains regular blood, and could easily transmit HIV. Saliva, tears, and sweat have such low traces of white blood cells that you'd have to drink gallons to put yourself seriously at risk. Urine is sterile and does not transmit HIV. Feces, however, often have blood in them and are therefore unsafe.

"Unsafe Activities"?

A short (and incomplete) list of activities which are potentially unsafe when engaged in without the use of a barrier:

- · Intercourse between a man and a woman or between two men
- · Anal finger play or fisting
- · Vaginal finger play or fisting
- Oral sex on a man or woman
- · Sharing any part of a rig used for injection drugs
- · Cuttings, piercings, or whipping until blood is drawn
- · kissing while there are open sores on the mouth.

Safer Injecting

Injection drug use is responsible for a higher percentage of new HIV infections than any other activity. This is especially true in urban areas, and for women. While many people think of addicts when hearing about needle use, the number of people who use drugs recreationally at dance clubs and parties is growing, and many of them are sharing their works.

Bleach will kill HIV, but only if it stays in the rig for at least 30 seconds. Drawing up alternatively water and bleach at least 5 times will usually fill the time minimum.

The most effective way to stay safe if you inject drugs either recreationally or regularly is to own your own rig, and not to share needles, syringes, cottons, cookers, or water with anyone else. Having works doesn't mean you're addicted, just that you care about staying alive.

Safer Sex: What it means and doesn't mean

"Safer sex" means using barriers during sex to keep yourself and your partner(s) from exchanging bodily fluids which carry HIV. Using safer sex also protects you from many other sexually transmitted diseases.

Safer sex does not mean asking your partners about who they've slept with and then deciding, based on that information alone, that it's okay to have unsafe sex. This ignores the fact that there are a number of ways to contract HIV, including sharing rigs while using injection drugs. This also does not ask what kinds of sex they had, whether safe or not, and does not at all address what partners their partners have had. This is also not a safe method for many bis, since both homophobia and biphobia on the part of our partners can affect how we answer and/or how they answer us. Beyond that, people have been known to change answers based on whether they think you'll still sleep with them if they answer honestly.

Safer sex does not mean simply being in a monogamous relationship. You may have been monogamous for all of two weeks. Or perhaps either you or your partner is a serial monogamist, who still has been known to have many partners in one year.

Safer sex means educating yourself, planning enough to get the supplies, and keeping them close at hand. If you have to get out of bed, go into another room, or if you simply left the stuff at home, you're giving yourself one more excuse to not play safely. Keep some next to your bed, in the kitchen, out by the pool, on your person, in your car, at the office, wherever you have sex. (Lucky you — at the office?)

LMM@lovemore.com / www.lovemore.com / 1-800-424-9561

Safer sex means being okay with talking about what you want. That can include "let's use this" and "I don't want to do that" and "a little more to the left..."

Safer Sex

Condoms

So available, so colorful, so user friendly. Condoms have gotten a bad rap in some circles about their tendency to break. But most of the times that a condom breaks, it's because it was used incorrectly. Always be sure to use a lubricated condom, or some lube with unlubed condoms. Be sure you NEVER use a petroleum-based lube with latex (like Vaseline, baby oil, Pennzoil, whatever your fetish) — it breaks down the latex and will cause it to tear.

Gloves

For all "digital play" (i.e. using your fingers in someone's vagina or anus) wear a latex glove, and use lots of lube. Gloves can be cut open by removing the fingers and thumb and cutting open one side to give you a nice, large, stretchy piece of latex for oral sex on women or for rimming. I love gloves because they make everything smoother, silkier. They are a fashion statement, especially when you coordinate the colored ones with your outfit. Tips/ideas: You can get boxes of gloves at beauty supply houses. If you're sensitive to the powder on gloves (or on latex), pre-rinse them in water, then let them dry. They'll be all ready to use when the occasion arises. If you'll be changing orifices mid-play (e.g. anus to vagina, one butt to another, etc.), put on two gloves at the beginning. Then, when you want to switch, just take one off, and you're ready. Try lube on the inside of the glove. You'll feel more, and the glove seems thinner.

Lubricant

For a lot of sex play, especially with latex, using a lubricant of some kind is highly recommended. Use a water-based one, because petroleum products break down latex.

Tips and ideas:

- ▼ Many lubes contain Nonoxynol-9, which does help fight HIV, but may also cause an allergic reaction. Women are especially sensitive to it. Check the ingredient list.
- ▼ Keep some water near wherever you have sex in a spray bottle or a squirt gun. If your lube begins to dry out, add water.

- ▼ For your travel pack, pick up lube samples from anywhere you buy lube. You can also often get some for free from health offices, AIDS outreach services, and from HIV testing sites.
- ▼ Lube makes everything wet and slippery. I can feel more. So can my partner(s). I can play longer. A lot longer. I have become a major lube fetishist. So can you.

Going Down on a Woman (a.k.a. oral sex/eating out/muff diving)

What's the big deal with this? Is it really not safe? I haven't heard anything that proves it.

OF COURSE NOT, because there have been almost no official (read: government) studies. But women who are HIV+ have a high rate of vaginal infections, and so there's a high rate of white blood cells and HIV just waiting for your mouth to suck them in.

You can use dental dams, if you like sex to taste like bubble gum. Or you can use the new dams made especially for oral sex. Or you can use plastic wrap (name brand, not generic, please, Mary). It's cool stuff because it doesn't taste like anything, you can see through it, and it comes in big long strips and neat colors. You can cut the tip off a condom and then cut it up the side to get a stretchier, thinner dam. Tip: Put some lube on her vagina or butt before covering it up, and everything will feel fabulous.

Dams

For years dental dams have been the standard barrier for oral sex on women or oral/anal play with women or men (rimming). Originally developed for use in dentistry, they are square sheets of latex which make an effective, if unappealing barrier. The main complaints about dental dams is that they are too thick and taste bad.

More recently, dams have come available which are made especially for oral sex. Two thin, plastic dams available on the market are Eros Veils and Rim Me. Recently a new latex product called Sheer Glyde Dams (known as Lollyes in Australia) has been approved by the FDA. These are larger than dental dams (6 x 10 inches), much thinner, and virtually taste-free.

As with any latex products, a little water-based lubricant between the skin and the latex will improve sensitivity and make the barrier feel even thinner. But be sure to avoid oil-based lubricants, which dissolve latex.

Plastic Wrap

Already around many households, plastic wrap can be used for oral sex on women or for oral/anal play with men or women (rimming). On the microwavable/non debate: you only have to worry about microwavable wrap becoming porous if your body heats up over 165 degrees Fahrenheit.

Tips/ideas:

- ▼ Take it out of the box to unroll and cut it by tearing it, so you don't get cut by the little razor edge on the box.
- ▼ Put some lube on his/her skin before wrapping. It'll feel better.
- ▼ Don't stretch the wrap tight, just lay it against the skin, sticking it on with the lube. This will help keep it from tearing, and you'll also be licking all those nooks and crannies, not a flat sheet of plastic.
- ▼ Plastic wrap is clear, thin, strong, and doesn't taste like latex. You can see through it. You can smell through it. It also comes in rolls so you aren't restricted on size. Plastic wrap is also useful as a restraint...

There's so much more I could tell you, but that's all I have room for now. Play a lot. Play safe. Have a good time. Wake up. Take some responsibility. Stay healthy. Learn to talk about sex and to ask for what you want. Sex gets better if you do. Now isn't that an excellent side effect from having safer sex?

Getting Bi on the Internet

What's out there in cyberspace for bisexuals, and how to get to it

The Internet has become a wonderful and popular place to share ideas, discussion and resources. But although it is a great place to find bi and bi-related information it can also be quite overwhelming to the newcomer. Without a good working knowledge of how to use search engines and navigate the Internet, it is very easy to just become lost and not find anything useful at all!

The resources here are listed by type: web pages, e-mail lists, IRC (chat), and newsgroups. Each section has a description of what that type of resources are listed and how to use them, with a list of some of the most popular and useful bisexual-related items.

Since there's way too much on the Internet to cover here, and because it's always changing, we've attempted to compile only what we think are some of the most general and helpful resources to someone new to the Internet (or to bisexuality!). By no means is this an attempt to include ALL bisexual or bi-inclusive Internet resources, but just to provide some good jumping-off points to get you started.

Web

bi Audrey Beth Stein

URLs for all sites mentioned in boldface are included at the end of this section.

The web has become a great resource for bisexuals in recent years. The Bisexual Resource Center (BRC), which publishes the Bisexual Resource Guide, also publishes a number of pamphlets on the web and in print. Titles include "Bisexuality: Some Questions Answered," "10 Things Your Congregation Can Do To Become More Welcoming," and "How to Start a Bisexual Support Group." The BRC also hosts an online bisexual bookstore in conjunction with amazon.com and the Bisexual Resource List which is part of the Queer Resource Directory.

PlanetOut is self-described as "the largest worldwide online community of gay, lesbian, bisexual, and transgendered people." Sections of PlanetOut include travel, movies, finance, news, radio, chat, and links to other bi and queer sites.

GLAAD, the Gay & Lesbian Alliance Against Defamation, advertises itself as a "national organization that promotes fair, accurate and inclusive representation as a means of challenging discrimination based on sexual orientation or identity. Their web site "invite[s] you to utilize these pages to access information about how the media portrays the gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgender community or how you can respond to media defamation and affirmation."

The Queer Resources Directory "is an electronic library with news clippings, political contact information, newsletters, essays, images, hyperlinks, and every other kind of information resource of interest to the GLBT community. Information is stored for the use of casual network users and serious researchers alike." Among other things, it includes a list of LGBT+ mailing lists.

The BiNet USA site includes a brief history of the bisexual movement and activist central with "instant email" to make it easier to be informed and speak out on various bi issues. "The Mission of BiNet USA is to collect and distribute information regarding Bisexuality; to facilitate the development of Bisexual community and visibility; to work for the equal rights and liberation of Bisexuals and all oppressed peoples; and to eradicate all forms of oppression inside and outside the Bisexual community. We are committed to being affirmatively inclusive of a multicultural constituency and political agenda."

Digital Queers promotes equal rights for queers and the queer community through strategic and effective use of digital technology and communications.

There are a number of collections of links and resources available on the web; more substantial ones include bi.org, Bisexual Options, Bisexual Hell, BI All Means, and Rainbow Query.

The goal of the bi.org is "to serve the worldwide bisexual community by providing a free Internet presence for bisexual individuals, groups and non-profit organisations. As well as providing free WWW space, there is a large set of pages detailing resources (groups, organisations, magazines, Internet newsgroups), and @bi.org email addresses and majordomo mailing lists are also available." Bi.org is centered in Europe while Bisexual Options, "your internet guide for everything bisexual," hosts web sites for nonprofit bi organizations in North America. Bisexual Options also includes links to resources and dates and contact information for upcoming conferences. Together the two sites provide a "City Bi City" guide, personal ads, and international news. Bi.org's collection of links (organized by topic) includes a list of webrings, which are a good way to find personal sites of random bi folk.

Bisexual Hell is purely a link-list, while BI All Means is a good collection of resources by category, including bi-specific, health, polyamory, and youth. Rainbow Query is a search engine which searches by category (including "bisexual") or by keyword.

While there are more and more bi-related sites cropping up on the web, and there is even an e-directory of lesbigay scholars, finding sites with unique or intellectual content is still a challenge. The October 1994 issue of <code>Bad Subjects</code> includes an article entitled "Bisexuality and How To Use It: Toward a Coalitional Identity Politics" by Annalee Newitz and Jillian Sandell. The <code>National Journal</code> of <code>Sexual Orientation Law</code> is one place to find new content on a regular, if infrequent basis. <code>ELIGHT</code> plugs itself as "an e-zine for the web created by and for gay youth and young adults in cyberspace." While bisexuals aren't mentioned in the title we are pretty well represented in the 'zine itself, which includes coming out stories, writings (both fiction and non-fiction), poetry, and personals. The <code>Rainbow Icon Archive</code> chronicles the history of many queer symbols, and <code>!OUTPROUD!</code> The National Coalition for <code>Gay</code>, <code>Lesbian</code>, <code>Bisexual</code>, and <code>Transgender Youth</code> includes book recommendations, a community role models archive, message boards, and a school resource library.

The Fine Art of Being Come Out To: A Straight Person's Guide To Gay Etiquette by Susan Harris includes an entire chapter on the bisexual coming out. There's a tremendous irony to the existence of this guide; if you pick it up on your own you probably don't need to read it, and if you should be reading it someone is probably trying to figure out the safest way to get it into your hands. That said, The Fine Art Of Being Come Out To is both hilarious and quite useful, and if more people read it, this world might be a better place.

Bi Mailing Lists

bi Gilly Rosenthol

Imagine being able to have a conversation with other people just like you all over the world - observant Jewish bisexuals, bi librarians, bi women with male partners. Or people who just share a similar interest - other people who want to chat about bi theory, activism, or local events. How can you do that without running up a phone bill to challenge the national debt? Join some email lists!

An email list is way of talking via email with not just one person at a time, but a whole group. You can sit back and just read the messages that come by, or be an active participant in the conversation. You send messages to a central address that sends them out to everyone who's subscribed to the list. Some lists are closed - only women, or bisexuals, or bisexual women with purple hair, are allowed to join, and subscriptions requests are filtered through a human being. Others are open, and anyone who's interested can join. Some have an option for digest format - you get one email with a bunch of messages, rather than thirty email messages throughout the day.

In addition to the address used to send messages to the list, there is usually a separate address for administrative tasks such as joining and leaving the list. This address usually goes to one of two common programs used to maintain mailing lists, Majordomo and Listserv. If the subscription address is in the form of listserv@anywhere.com, you can send an email with the body "info listname" for more information, or "sub listname your name" to subscribe. It the address is majordomo@anywhere.com, the format for information is the same, and to subscribe simply write "subscribe listname your-email-address" in the body of your message. Try not to include your .signature file, if you use one; it will only confuse the computer. Very quickly, you should get back information about where to send messages that you want to go to the list, and how to unsubscribe. Save this message - it makes it much easier once you're getting three hundred messages a day and need to cut down on your mailing lists!

IRC

bi John Valentine

Interrelay chat, or IRC, is very much in flux. Anyone at anytime can create a channel (chat room)...and the channels are constantly changing. There are some "reliable" bi channels under the names #bi, #bisexual, and #bisexuals_anonymous. To complicate matters, there are hundreds of IRC servers around the world. There seem to be three main networks of IRC servers: DALnet, Undernet, and EFnet. Each of these three networks seem to have the three above mentioned channels on a regular basis as well as dozens of other bisexual related channels that come and go.

The character of the channels varies. Some are for non-sexual discussion only, while others are purely sexual. The channels listed above seem to be the most tame and friendly to people new to IRC.

Newsgroups

bi Kathryn Foote

Newsgroups, like e-mail lists (listservs), are electronic forums through which people all over the world can connect on the basis of common interests and characteristics. Newsgroups, however, are easier to use than e-mail lists in some ways. As long as a particular newsgroup exists on the server to which your computer is networked (for example, on the aol.com server if your internet access is through America Online) all it takes to get started is to locate it on the list of groups available and then click to subscribe. That group you selected is then instantly accessible for you to participate in at your convenience (although "netiquette" generally dictates that you "lurk"--that is, just read--a given group for a month or so before posting yourself). So, with a newsgroup, there is no waiting for a listowner or listserv program to process your subscription request--and no danger of hundreds of messages suddenly appearing in your personal mailbox, as with a high-volume mailing list.

Despite these advantages, or in some measure because of them, the trend for sexuality-related discussion is currently toward listservs and away from newsgroups. Ease of access makes newsgroups (especially unmoderated ones) obvious targets for "spam" (irrelevent, irritating, and often commercial messsages sent to many newsgroups at once, much like traditional direct mail), "hate-mail" posts by bi/homophobic bigots, and sometimes a combination of the two. Relatedly, e-mail lists afford their subscribers greater privacy than do newsgroups. They also offer a better opportunity to discuss narrowly-focused topics (such as bis/LGBTs in a certain profession or religion) without being interrupted by someone relatively clueless who is "just passing by" in cyberspace.

Nevertheless, there are still several internationally oriented bisexual and related newsgroups on the internet that are usually filled with more posts than you could read in one sitting. Some regional/national newsgroups (described in the regional sections of this guide) still get a fair number of legitimate posts as well. You will also be able to find out about new/other groups through your newsreader's search program or through search engines like Yahoo! on the worldwide web.

The primary bisexually focused newsgroup on the internet is soc.bi. (There is also alt.personals.bi, but even many of the non-spam posts there are of the "bi-curious" and/or "seeking hot bi babe" variety and so may not be of interest to many.) The discussion is wide-ranging (from bi self-definition, to politics, to gossip) and often quite interesting and informative. The group can seem, however, to have wild mood swings--from threads (groups of related posts) composed of little more than allusions to newsgroup in-jokes, to protracted and vicious "flamewars" (exchanges of nasty, often ad-hominem attacks), sometimes over seemingly minor differences. It is an especially good idea, therefore, to read the FAQ (Frequently Asked Questions) document that is posted periodically to the newsgroup itself and is permanently on the web at http://bi.org/~jon/soc.bi (the soc.bi homepage). Doing so will allow you to familiarize yourself with some of the pet peeves and the folklore that have developed among longtime posters. (Reading a newsgroup's FAQ, when one exists, is always advisable.)

There are two other newsgroups that are not just about bisexuality but are explicitly inclusive of bis. These are soc.women.lesbian-and-bi (swlab) and soc.support.youth.gay-lesbian-bi (ssyglb). Unlike soc.bi, these forums are moderated. That is, posts to the group get forwarded to a moderator who filters out the spam, hate mail, and anything else that is deemed inappropriate or irrelevant. Please note, however, that these groups are not exclusive in terms of who can post. Swlab will post messages from men or heterosexual women as long as they are civil and concern the group's topic: the lives of lesbians and bi women. Ssyglb, as the title suggests, focuses on support, discussion, news and networking for LGB youth but does not prohibit appropriate messages from older people (like those who are thirty or even more ancient). The FAQs for swlab and ssyglb are on the web at http://www.mtholyoke.edu/~wjfraser/swlab and http://www.youth.org/ssyglb/ssyglb-faq.html, respectively. These FAQs are quite comprehensive, chock full of links and other resources, and are great resources in and of themselves.

Finally, there are two other well-populated groups that may be of interest to bisexuals and that already have many bi posters: soc.motss and alf.polyamory. The "motss" in soc.motss stands for "members of the same sex," and is an acronym generally understood on the net to pertain at least to lesbians and gay men and often extended (as in the case of this newsgroup) to include bisexual, transgender, and other. Soc.motss is for social discussion among LGBTO people.

Alt.polyamory is a group for discussions of interest to polyamorous people. The FAQ provides the basics on polyamory (and beyond), so that those new to the concept can be prepared to engage in meaningful discussion.

If you do not have newsgroup access or your system does not carry one of the newsgroups described here, you can still read and post through a web site called dejanews (http://www.dejanews.com) as long as you can provide them with an e-mail address. If you do not have an e-mail address, or if that server is busy, you can still read some groups through search engines on the web.

However you get there, here's hoping you have a happy experience in bi newsgroup land.

Directory of Bisexual and Bi-Inclusive Groups

About the listings: what's here, what's not, and how they were chosen.

An enormous number of individuals from all over the world volunteered to work as regional editors. What follows is the result of their work combined with some work done on this end. Editors were asked to verify and add listings of bi and bi-inclusive groups in their geographic region. You may notice that regions differ in terms of what is and what is not included—that is because we tried to respect the editor's judgement. In general, we were much more restrictive in scope in areas that have many resources. For example, in Boston, an organization that calls itself "lesbian and gay" rather than "lesbian, gay, bisexual & transgender" was unlikely to be included. However, in India we were so happy to find any resources at all that we included groups regardless of their name.

Organizations are arranged as follows: International groups are listed first. Countries follow alphabetically, with national groups listed first, then local groups. In some instances organizations that we feel should be given priority have been moved to the front of their section. With this exception, groups are then alphabetized by the city in which they are located, then further alphabetized by group name. You should be creative in searching: for example, many groups located within New York City may be listed under city neighborhoods such as Flushing, or Brooklyn, rather than under New York City, and other listings may not have a city name listed at all and would thus be listed at the beginning of their region.

If your group is not listed and should have been please do not take offense. Rather, just send us information so that we can include it in our next edition! Likewise, if there are errors in the listings, please let us know. Groups come and go and change their names, addresses, email and phone numbers daily - you can help us keep our information current.

CHINA

bi You Yun

Beijing Hotline: 010-64266958. It's called an "AIDS hotline", but people know that it's about sexual minorities, too. It's actually a pager number, not a phone line. I was told that the volunteers received thousands of phone calls from all over China in the months after the number was publicized in a popular magazine, so the volunteers had a hard time finding enough funding to cover their returning calls. This number was established in 1997 or 1996, but until the summer of 1998 was only publicized by word of mouth within the community.

In Mainland China, although the visible glbt community has been developing for a few years, there have not been any formally-named groups until very recently, because forming nongovernmental organizations is a very sensitive matter there. The first named lesbian group is Beijing Sister, established in October 1998, after the first national lesbian conference in China held on October 2 & 3, 1998. The gay male communities are a lot larger than the lesbian ones in terms of size & number of members, but, to my knowledge, there are also no self-named gay male groups within Mainland China to this day.

Bisexual identity seems to carry somewhat different meanings in China than in the West. To a large extent, the gay or lesbian community does not exclude bisexual people. The absence of the so-called "biphobia" which exists in the West seems obvious, although such an absence is apparently not complete. Indeed, because, in China, the general public still strongly disapproves of samesex love, some bisexual people see their being able to form heterosexual marriages as real advantage. Although not every bisexual person in China may think that way, it's extremely rare for bis to be accused by gavs or lesbians for being "not brave enough to admit." Practically, the prevailing heterosexism puts all people who have same-sex romantic passion in the same boat.

In addition, the Chinese lgbt people (not only in Mainland China, but also in Hong Kong, Taiwan, & some other Asian countries) conceptualize their sexual identity now by a term "Tongzhi" (meaning "comrade." "Tong" meaning "homo", & the Chinese term homosexuality, "tongxinglian," also starts with the same character "tong"), in some sense similar to the English term "queer", but not totally equivalent. In the lgbt context, Tongzhi means people who are not traditionally heterosexual, therefore including gays, lesbians, bisexuals, transgenders & transsexuals, crossdressings, even S/M, even heterosexual people who are willing to accept sexual minorities. In other words, the Tongzhi community includes bisexual people.

Since the late 1980s, gay bars have appeared in almost all major cities in China, while there has not been a single lesbian-exclusively bar. Meanwhile, other alternative community-building means like discussion groups are also developing. For example, in the summer of 1998, a group of glbt people gathered in Lemon Tree Cafe in Beijing for discussion & began a monthly discussion gathering that welcomes anybody to attend. Some activists & scholars have also brought LGBT issues into the discussion in other public settings like the Women's Tea House.

There are regular social gatherings for lgbt people in big cities like Beijing. However, most lgbt people in smaller cities or rural areas still live in tremendous isolation, let alone possible discrimination if one's identity is exposed. So community activists are trying to develop a broader communication network for LGBT people to reduce the isolation most of them have to face in their everyday lives.

As in most other parts of the world, the Internet has also been playing a very important role in connecting LGBT people in China. Here is an incomplete list of the major lgbt websites in China:

http://bbs.gzsums.edu.cn/~bbs/. Click "Eden Garden" then click "Homosexuality". There are quite a few serious gay novels & other good articles. Please note that this website is in mainland China & any erotic materials or radical articles in it may cause its shut-down! I suggest reading the articles while remaining silent, don't cause it to be focused on by security administration. (I quote this entire paragraph from somebody else who is on a Chinese lgbt e-mail list I'm also on.)

http://aizhi.sis.com.cn This site is the online version of the AIZHI newsletter, the oldest lgbt advocate newsletter in China started in 1994. This website started in the summer of 1998.

http://www.youmail.com.cn/cafe http://www.youmail.com.cn/friends The newsletter "Friends" by dermatologist Dr. Beichuan Zhang, a more academicoriented newsletter that not only discusses issues related to homosexuality but also intends to bring people in sexual minorities & the socalled "mainstream" together.

http://www.zg169.net/~les This is a lesbian & bisexual women – female Tongzhi – website, established in last August 1998. It's pretty active now.

Besides those in Mainland China, there is a US-based website mainly devoted to the Tongzhi community in Mainland China & the LGBT in the US who are from Mainland China at http://www.csssm.org. The organization's name is "the Chinese Society for the Study of Sexual Minorities" (CSSSM), started in September 1997. (I'm one of the founders & current members). The CSSSM publishes a bilingual (Chinese & English), bi-weekly webzine "Tao Hong Men Tian Xia" (direct translation is "pink color all over the world," meaning "we lgbt people are anywhere").

"Lavender Phoenix" is another US-based group, "a network for lesbians & bisexual women in & from Mainland China," started in May 1997 by five lesbians & bisexual women from China in the US (I was one of them). It doesn't have a webpage yet, it has a few contact e-mail addresses:

URL: www.qs.org.hk Feminist organization advocateing & fighting for women's sexual rights, comprised of women who are tired of "being told to stick to one SEXual ID & one kind of feminist idea $ never can we be named or explained by one (whatever) ism. We are playful & serious, personal & political, involved in a movement fighting for a more inclusive, more open & better world with larger space for women, as sexual beings & as subjects, who have different, various & everchanging routes in the immense domain of sexuality. We believe in a never ending search for the indeterminacy, heterogeneity, multiplicity, transgressiveness & variance of sexuality & sexual choices. Projects include research, a hotline, a quarterly newsletter, workshops, fundraising parties & having fun.

The national organization / action-group for bisexuality became a society in 1992 after having been in existence for ten years. Goals: (1) to stimulate both local & national activities for/by bisexuals & allies, to increase recognition, support & emancipation of bisexuals. (2) to change society as a whole, by breaking the hetero-norm & the gay/straight duality in order to achieve acceptance of bisexuality as an equal choice & way of life. Publication(s): Bi-Nieuws Quarterly newsletter. For 35 dutch guilders you can become a member of the society & receive Bi-Nieuws by mail. Only their PO box address is mentioned on the otherwise blank envelope. By transferring the amount of 7.50 dutch guilders on giro-account 5459383 of LNBi in Amsterdam you may request a test issue of Bi-Nieuws. The meaning of ditto (katten-maum) is sameness, homogenity. All of our members are sexual minorities & we chose the name for the purpose of "becoming one". There are few local queer groups in Korea. Most of the groups exist in Seoul & Ditton (katten-maum) is a local queer group in Pusan & Kyungnam. The queer culture of this region differs from Seoul & other regions so our org. is specific to the region. Acitivites inclue: counseling, AIDS activism, aiding HIV+ people, political activism.

I forgot that when we find comfort in "us" and "them," we are sometimes uncovering the unacknowledged chasm of differing experience and other times we're retreating from kinship with people not so different after all, or kin because of their difference, because of what they know about how to live their different lives that might directly apply to our lives. Sometimes what they know is the only thing that will save us or comfort us, and we sit divided from each other by the lines in the sand, dying of thirst next to a pitcher of water.

"I was not confused about what I was feeling, which seemed very clear to me, but rather about what to do about what I was feeling. What I wanted to do was lie down with her in a field of daisies and hold her and let her hold me, and then probably kiss. That was as far as my fantasies went. My confusion came mainly from what everybody else would think."

"Zeus, to steal boy Ganymede
An eagle's form put on;
And when he wanted the lady Leda
He turned into a swan.

Now some like girls, and some like boys; But the moral's plain to see: If both are good enough for Zeus, They're good enough for me."

Bisexual Women's Discussion Group & Brunches

tel: 413-253-2104 (Dasha)

"If bisexuality is in fact, as I suspect it to be, not just another sexual orientation but rather a sexuality that undoes sexual orientation as a category, ... then the search for the meaning of the word 'bisexual' offers a different kind of lesson. Rather than naming an invisible, undernoticed minority now finding its place in the sun, 'bisexual' turns out to be, like bisexuals themselves, everywhere and nowhere. There is, in short, no 'really' about it. The question of whether someone was 'really' straight or 'really' gay misrecognizes the nature of sexuality, which is fluid, not fixed, a narrative that changes over time rather than a fixed identity, however complex. The erotic discovery of bisexuality is the fact that it reveals sexuality to be a process of growth, transformation, and surprise, not a stable and knowable state of being."

"The use of the phrase 'sexual orientation' to describe only a person's having sex with members of their own gender or the other sex obscures the fact that many of us have other strong and consistent sexual orientations – toward certain hair colors, body shapes, racial types. It would be as logical to look for genes associated with these orientations as for 'homosexual genes.'"

"In another life, dear sister, I too would bear six fat children.
In another life, dear sister, I too would love another woman and raise one child together as if that it pushed from both our wombs. In another life, sister, I too would dwell solitary and splendid as a lighthouse on the rocks or be born to mate for life like the faithful goose. Praise all our choices. Praise any woman who chooses, and make safe her choice."

SEXUAL IDENTITY

"A visionary and courageous memoir that challenges many of our assumptions about sexual identity and desire." — Jaime Manrique, author of Latin Moon in Manhattan

"Unsentimental, questing, and deeply funny." — Catherine McKinley, editor of Afrekete:

An Anthology of Black Lesbian Writing

"A brilliant — and stirring — book. Jan

Clausen has courageously used her own life as a way of illuminating the crucial issue of 'identity' currently embroiling the culture.

Seminal...a true trail-blazer."

ADD TO BI-BLIOGRAPHY:

Helen Eisenbach, Loon Glow. New York: Farrar Straus Giroux, 1998. Straight man falls in love with women who fall in love with women, each other, it turns out. One of these women turns or attention to him for a while. Is she bisexual? Maybe.

E. Lynn Harris, If This World Were Mine. New York: Doubleday, 1997. Several of the We're looking for poetry, nonfiction, and male characters in this most recent novel are bisexual, not one of them likeable.

Carole Maso, Ghost Dance. NY: Harper & Row, 1986. About a woman who grows up with a mentally ill mother in a family whose imaginary life is often more powerful than the exterior one. Mother leaves husband and family periodically to spend time with her female love.

Julia Willis, Reel Time. Los Angeles: Alyson Publications, 1998. Dyke drama based in Cambridge, MA, in the early 1990s. Among the characters are a woman who leaves the local lesbian community to go off and marry a man, and a woman who self-identifies as bisexual, has a crush on every woman she meets, but is afraid to act on her feelings. The narrator is not particularly impressed by either woman.

CALLS FOR WRITINGS:

CALL FOR WRITINGS: LESBIAN & BISEXUAL SORORITY WOMEN. The Lambda 10 Project is seeking contributions for their second anthology, specifically focused on being lesbian or bisexual in a THAT'S ALL.... FOR TODAY. college sorority. Lesbian & bisexual women who have been or who are currently members of a college sorority are encouraged to share their personal accounts of sisterhood in relationship to being lesbian or bisexual. We want diverse experiences so we ask women whether "closeted" or "out" in their sorority to share their experience (positive or negative). Straight women also encouraged to submit stories about having a sister "come out" & how that experience impacted the sorority. Lambda 10 Project; Office of Student Ethics/Anti-Harassment Programs; 705 E. 7th Street; Bloomington, IN 47405-3809 or email: lambda10@indiana.edu. See website http:/ /www.indiana.edu/~lambda 10.
